A. KEY FINDINGS

A.1 Overall trends in visits to English attractions 2004-2005

2005 saw a dry and sunny year in England, with rainfall 10% below average across the year and nine months experiencing below average rainfall. August was especially dry and only April and October experienced rainfall above average. South East and central Southern England was particularly dry, with rainfall 20% below normal. Northern England was less dry although still with lower rainfall than average across the year. Sunshine levels were 8% above average for the year, with August and September particularly sunny months. Temperatures for the year were an average of 1.1 degrees Celsius above normal. This compares with 2004 which saw a more "traditional" English summer, with England experiencing the wettest summer since 1912, August being a particularly wet month.

At the outset of 2005, the tourism industry was expected to continue its recovery from the negative factors affecting travel in 2003 such as the Iraq war and SARS virus. In the event, visits to London, and indeed to urban attractions generally, were adversely affected by the July bombings in the capital.

The 1,992 England visitor attractions that provided visits figures for both 2004 and 2005 reported little change in visitor admissions overall, with an average decrease of less than -0.5% in 2005. This compares with the slight increase in visits figures of +1% reported in 2004.

The majority of categories showed growth in 2005, with particularly strong increases in visits to outdoor attractions such as gardens (+8%), country parks (+7%), wildlife attractions/zoos (+5%) and farms (+5%).

However, this was balanced by decreasing visits to the two sectors with the highest number of attractions. Museums/art galleries, which represent around a third of all attractions, recorded a notable decrease in visits (-3%), following an increase in visits in 2004 (+4%). Visits to museums/art galleries tend to be adversely affected by fine weather. Visits to historic houses/castles, which account for about a fifth of attractions, declined by -2%, following a 1% decline reported in 2004.

Despite the dry weather, visits to leisure/theme parks also declined by -6% in 2005 following a -1% decline in 2004. Although leisure/theme parks represent only around 2% of attractions, they account for over 10% of visits.

Country parks (+7%) and farms (+5%) continued their recovery of the past three years after their decline in 2001. Following several uncertain years, visits to wildlife attractions/zoos also increased by +5% in 2005, again boosted by the dry weather.

Visits to gardens continued to be largely dependent upon the weather, with visits up by +8% in 2005 following a decline of -6% in 2004 and an increase of +6% in 2003. Following recent declines, visits to places of worship now show signs of increases in visits, increasing by +3% in 2005 following a year of stability in 2004.

Table A.2 England visit trends 2004-2005 – by admission type (%)

Admission	Attractions sample	Increase	No change	Decrease	% 05/04
Free	(709)	49	22	29	+*
Paid	(1,283)	50	8	42	-*
England	(1,992)	50	13	37	-*

Not only were visits overall stable in 2005, they were also stable among both free (+) and paid (-) attractions. This position of overall stability does mask some changes within attraction categories (see Table 2.3). In particular, visits to free museums/art galleries declined by -3% compared with -1% to paid museums/art galleries, whereas visits to free visitor/heritage centres increased by +6% compared with just +1% among their paid equivalents.

Table A.3 England visit trends 2004-2005 - by geographic location (%)

Geographic location	Attractions sample	% 05/04
Coastal	(212)	-6
Rural	(949)	+4
Urban	(831)	-1
England	(1,992)	.*

Following a year of stability in 2004, visits to rural attractions once again increased by +4% in 2005. This was driven by increases in visits to farms, country parks and gardens. Visits to coastal attractions suffered in 2005, decreasing by -6% despite the dry weather. Whilst many regions reported a decline, the most significant was within the North West, whose coastal attractions reported a -19% decline (whilst the North of England recorded a drier than average year, rainfall was not as low as that observed in the South). Following an increase of +3% in 2004, visits to urban attractions remained relatively stable in 2005, declining slightly by -1%.

Table A.4 England visit trends 2004-2005 – by volume of visits (%)

Over 200,000	(208)	-1
England	(1,992)	.*

During 2005, the trend for visits to migrate away from the very smallest attractions has continued. Attractions with 20,000 visits or less reported another slight decline in visits (-2%), the same as reported in 2004. This follows two years in which their increase had been lower than at larger attractions. Attractions with between 20,000 and 200,000 visits per annum recorded slight growth.

Conversely, attractions with over 200,000 visits recorded a slight decrease in visits in 2005 (-1%), following an increase (+2%) in 2004. This was driven by declines in visits to some of the major national free museums and art galleries, particularly in London.

Table A.5 Overall visits trends 2004-2005 - by English Government Office Region (%)

Region	Attractions sample	% 05/04

Eastern	(328)	+5
London	(154)	-5
South East	(386)	+3
South West	(363)	.*
England	(1,992)	.*

Visits to attractions showed growth in the majority of regions, with visits to attractions in Yorkshire/The Humber (+8%) and the East (+5%) reporting particularly strong increases. However, visits to attractions in both the North West (-6%) and London (-5%) declined notably. In London, this followed a strong performance in 2004 when visits were up by (+6%). The negative impact of the July bombings in London on visits to the capital appears to have been significant. London also tends to be adversely affected by fine weather – 2005 being a drier summer than the exceptionally wet summer of 2004. The South West experienced a further slight decline in visits during 2005 (-.*%) following a decline of -2% in 2004.

A.2 Overall trends in admission prices 2004-2005

Table A.6 Adult admission prices 2004-2005 (paid admission) – by category (%)

Other	(60)	£7.49	£8.05	+8
England	(1,045)	£4.63	£4.93	+7

Adult admission charges increased by an average of +7% in 2005, a slightly higher rise than reported in each of 2004 (+6%) and 2003 (+5%). The rate of admission charge increases appears to be growing year-on-year. The average adult admission charge among paid attractions is now close to the £5.00 barrier (£4.93 in 2005).

As in 2004, admission charge increases among museums/art galleries were slightly lower than for England as a whole (+5%).

Categories with the highest increases in adult admission charges in 2005 were country parks (+24%) and workplaces (+12%) - (however note small sample size).

Adult admission charges continued to vary considerably in 2005 according to attraction category, from £2.91 among other historic properties and £3.44 among museums/art galleries to £11.85 at leisure/theme parks and £7.31 at wildlife attractions/zoos.

A.3 Overall trends in gross revenue 2004-2005

Table A.7 Gross revenue trend 2004-2005 – by English GOR (%)

South West	(317)	44	29	27	+3
England	(1,779)	45	34	21	+7

Gross revenues were reported to have increased by an average of +7% in 2005. With visits remaining stable and average adult admission charges increasing by +7%, an increase of this magnitude might have been expected. All regions saw an increase in gross revenue in 2005, but the West Midlands (+10%), South East (+10%) and North West (+9) attractions reported the highest average levels of growth.

Overall just under half of English attractions (45%) reported an increase in gross revenue from visitors in 2005, the same as that observed in 2004 and slightly lower than reported in 2003 (53%). Just under a quarter (21%) reported a decrease, again similar to that reported in 2004 (22%) and slightly higher than in 2003 (18%). The average change reported in 2005 was +7%, once again the same as in 2004 but slightly lower than that observed in either 2003 (+10%) or 2002 (+11%).

England	(1,779)	45	34	21	+7

All attraction categories recorded increases in gross revenue in 2005 compared with 2004. However, there were significant variations across the categories. Overall, increases in visits were reflected in increases in gross revenue, with country parks (+14%), gardens (+13%), steam/heritage railways (+13%) and farms (+10%) all reporting strong increases in gross revenue. Gardens reported a particularly strong increase following an average decrease of (-1%) in 2004.

Despite a notable decline in visits and only an average increase in admission charges, leisure/theme parks again recorded a strong average increase in gross revenue in 2005 (+8%), albeit lower than reported in 2004 (+19%) and 2003 (+18%).

Increases in gross revenues were lower than the average for England as a whole among both historic houses/castles (+3%) and museums/art galleries (+5%), who between them account for around half of all visitor attractions. Gross revenue increases among both workplaces (+4%) and places of worship (+4%) were also below average.

A.3 Marketing expenditure trend 2004-2005

Table A.9 Movement in spend on marketing – by attraction category 2004-2005 (%)

Places of worship	(74)	20	69	11
Other	(107)	34	58	8
England	(1,679)	25	65	10

Note: percentages read across

25% of attractions indicated an increase in marketing spend in 2005 when compared to 2004 and only 10% a decrease. This was similar to that reported in 2004 when 25% recorded an increase and 13% a decrease in marketing expenditure. However, this represents a slight tightening of budgets since 2003 when 30% of attractions indicated an increase and only 11% a decrease.

Steam/heritage railways (37%), leisure/theme parks (32%) and farms (31%) were most likely to state that their marketing expenditure had increased. Leisure/theme parks and farms were also more likely to have increased their marketing expenditure in 2004. However, it should also be noted that 21% of leisure/theme parks stated that their marketing expenditure had decreased, a higher proportion than any other attraction category. This was also the case in 2004.

Visitor/heritage centres (21%), places of worship (20%) and other historic properties (19%) were least likely to record an increase in expenditure.

Table A.10 Movement in spend on marketing – by English GOR 2004-2005 (%)

Region	Sample	Increase	Similar	Decrease
North East	(85)	13	79	8
North West	(151)	23	60	17

South East	(329)	28	62	10
South West	(305)	24	65	10
England	(1,679)	25	65	10

Note: percentages read across

The North East (13%) and London (19%) recorded significantly lower proportions than average of attractions that had increased their marketing expenditure. However, rather than decreases in marketing expenditure, most attractions in these regions chose to maintain similar levels of expenditure to that of 2004 (79% and 74% respectively).

The East (31%) and South East (28%) were most likely to report increases in marketing expenditure. Conversely, the North West was most likely to report decreases in marketing expenditure (17% compared with 10% across England as a whole).

1. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

Visitor Attraction Trends England 2005 presents the findings of the Survey of Visits to Visitor Attractions undertaken in England by VisitBritain. The report provides a comprehensive England-wide analysis of trends plus visits data for individual attractions. Separate reports are produced by the national tourist organisations of Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales giving results for their own countries.

Visitor Attraction Definition

For the purpose of the survey, the definition of a visitor attraction is:

“..an attraction where it is feasible to charge admission for the sole purpose of sightseeing. The attraction must be a permanently established excursion destination, a primary purpose of which is to allow access for entertainment, interest, or education; rather than being primarily a retail outlet or a venue for sporting, theatrical, or film performances. It must be open to the public, without prior booking, for published periods each year, and should be capable of attracting day visitors or tourists as well as local residents. In addition, the attraction must be a single business, under a single management, so that it is capable of answering the economic questions on revenue, employment etc.”

As there are a number of attractions which are primarily retail outlets but have an attraction element, a set of guidelines have been included with the questionnaire since 2001 asking such attractions to take part only if they could provide data for the attraction element itself. This set of guidelines can be found in Appendix 2.

1.1 Research Objectives

The purpose of the survey is to monitor trends in the visitor attraction sector throughout England and to improve understanding of the dynamics of the sector. The findings contribute to regional and national estimates of the economic impact of tourism and inform regional development and planning work. The results of the survey allow operators to benchmark their operation within their category, within their region and across the sector as a whole.

1.2 Survey Method

The survey was carried out by means of a self-completion questionnaire mailed to all known English visitor attractions which met, as far as could be determined, the definition of a visitor attraction used in the survey. A copy of the questionnaire used can be found in Appendix 2.

BDRC (formerly MEW Research) currently holds the contract for the survey in England and is responsible for the preparation of this report.

1.3 Population, sample and response rate

5,126 English visitor attractions were invited to take part in the 2005 survey. Some 2,111 English visitor attractions provided visits figures for year 2005, an effective response rate of 41%.

A further 408 attractions (8%) responded, of which 61 attractions indicated that they were closed in 2004 (38 temporarily, 23 permanently), 182 that they could not provide visit figures for lack of information, 55 that they did not consider themselves to meet the definition of an attraction and 110 that they did not wish to participate in the survey.

Table 1.1 Response rate by attraction category

Category	Number of attractions surveyed	Number of attractions that provided visits data	Effective response rate
Country Parks	221	96	43%
Farms	165	72	44%
Gardens	326	140	43%
Historic Properties	1,509	653	43%
Leisure/Theme Parks	194	39	20%
Museums/Art Galleries	1,497	653	44%
Steam/Heritage Railways	100	49	49%
Visitor/Heritage Centres	174	81	47%
Wildlife Attractions	338	112	33%
Workplaces	383	92	24%
Other	309	124	40%
Total	5,216	2,111	40%

Response rates within the two attraction categories which account for over half of all English attractions – museums/art galleries (44% response) and historic properties (43% response) – were slightly above average. Response rates were also high among farms (44%), visitor/heritage centres (47%) and steam/heritage railways (49%). As has been the case in recent years, leisure/theme parks (20%), workplaces (24%) and wildlife attractions (33%) had the lowest response rates.

Table 1.2 Methods used by visitor attractions to record visits

Methods used to record data	Attractions
Sample	(2,111)
	%
Ticket or group bookings	51
Manual count	34
Mechanical or electronic	11
Estimate	10
Sample count	7
Other	4
Not stated	2

Almost all operators (98%) provided details on methods used to calculate visitor numbers. Some may have used more than one method, hence the total exceeds 100%. The most frequent methods used to record visits data were ticket sales/group bookings, followed by a manual count. The proportions using each method were very similar to those observed in 2004 and 2003.

1.4 Guide to the tables

Confidentiality

Visits figures for individual attractions do not appear in this report if the attraction operator did not authorise them for publication. Data provided by operators who requested confidentiality is included in the aggregated calculations. 345 attractions requested that their visits figures remain confidential in 2005 compared with 395 in 2004.

Estimates

If operators have stated their visits are estimates, this is clearly indicated in Section 6 with an 'E' following the number of visits.

Responding sample sizes

In most of the tables, the number of attractions providing information is shown in brackets in the first column of figures under '(Attractions sample)'. In tables relating to visits, the number of visits reported by responding attractions is shown instead under '(Visits sample)'. The sample sizes vary between tables as the number of attractions responding to individual questions varied.

Admission

Tables in Section 6 include the charging status of each visitor attraction (in the column entitled 'Entry'). 'F' indicates that admission to the main attraction is free of charge. However, it should be noted that some free attractions may charge for entry to particular parts of the attraction or special exhibitions. Where an attraction charges admission for the main attraction element, the adult admission price is noted.

Symbols

In the tables, an asterisk is used to indicate a percentage is less than 0.5%. A plus or minus sign indicates whether the value is positive or negative.

2. ENGLAND VISIT TRENDS 2004-2005

This chapter analyses trends in the number of visits to English attractions that provided data for both 2004 and 2005. 1,992 out of the 5,216 English visitor attractions mailed in the survey provided visits figures for both 2004 and 2005.

The 1,992 English visitor attractions that provided visits figures for both years reported little change, with an average decrease of less than -0.5% in 2005. This follows several years where the rate of increase in visits has been slowing, increasing by +8% in 2002, +2% in 2003 and only +1% in 2004. Between 2002 and 2004, attractions were recovering from the losses caused by the Foot & Mouth epidemic and September 11th (an overall decline of -2% was reported in 2001.) In 2005, London attractions were adversely affected by the July bombings in the capital which led to an annual decline in visits of -5%. Other than in the North West (whose visits declined by -6%), visits to attractions in other regions continued to increase steadily – see Section 3 for full regional analysis.

50% of attractions indicated they had benefited from an increase in visits (45% in 2004) while 37% reported a loss (41% in 2004). Again, this indicates a positive picture across England as a whole.

Museums/art galleries recorded a notable decrease in visits (-3%) in 2005, following a positive year in 2004 (+4%) and a year of stability in 2003. Visits to museums/art galleries tend to be significantly higher in years of poor weather than in years of fine weather. 2005 was a particularly dry year compared with 2004, with the decline in visits reflecting this.

Outdoor attractions performed the best in terms of visits, with gardens (+8%), country parks (+7%), wildlife attractions (+5%) and farms (+5%) all increasing visits significantly compared with 2004. Gardens appear to be the most dependent upon fine weather of all of these outdoor attractions, being particularly adversely affected by the wet summer of 2004. Over half (55%) of gardens reported an increase in visits in 2005 compared with only 29% in 2004.

Visits to historic houses/castles continued to decline, visits decreasing by -2% in 2005 following a -1% decrease in 2004. Despite the fine weather, visits to leisure/theme parks also decreased (by -6%) overall. However, 57% of these reported an increase in visits in 2005 suggesting that the decline has been driven by a small number of attractions experiencing a significant decline in visits. Following recent declines, visits to places of worship (+3%) showed signs of improvement in 2005.

Free	(709)	49	22	29	+
Paid	(1,283)	50	8	42	-*

As was the case in 2004, visits to paid attractions remained stable. In both 2004 and 2005 visits to paid attractions declined by less than 0.5%. However, visits to free attractions in 2005 also remained stable following a 3% increase reported in 2004.

Table 2.3 overleaf illustrates visit trends by free/paid admission within each category type. The apparent stability in visits to both paid and free attractions masks some notable shifts by attraction category type. Country parks, farms, gardens and wildlife attractions/zoos all reported significant increases in visits among both free and paid attractions. Conversely, visits to paid leisure/theme parks declined by -11% and visits to paid historic houses/castles decreased by -2%.

Museums/art galleries have driven the change in visits to free attractions overall. Whereas in 2004, visits to free museums/art galleries increased by +5% (driving an overall increase of +3% to free attractions), visits to free museums/art galleries were down by -3% in 2005. Stability among free attractions was achieved in 2005 due to increases in visits among the majority of other attraction categories, particularly outdoor attractions.

Over 200,000	(208)	49	18	33	-1
England	(1,992)	50	13	37	-*

During 2005, the trend for visits to migrate away from smaller attractions has continued. Attractions with 20,000 visits or less reported a further decline in visits (-2%), following a similar decline in 2004. This followed two years in which increases in visits to these smaller attractions had been lower than at larger attractions. Attractions with between 20,000 and 200,000 visits per annum increased visits in 2005 by around +2%. Conversely, attractions with over 200,000 visits recorded a slight decrease in visits in 2005 (-1%), following an increase (+2%) in 2004. This was driven by declines in visits to some of the major national free museums and art galleries, particularly in London.

Table 2.5 England visit trends 2004-2005 - by geographic location (%)

Urban	(831)	47	11	41	-1
England	(1,992)	50	13	37	-*

Following a year of stability in 2004, visits to rural attractions once again increased by +4% in 2005. This was driven by increases in visits to outside attractions such as farms, country parks and gardens which benefited from the dry year. Visits to coastal attractions suffered in 2005, decreasing by -6% despite the dry weather.

Whilst many regions reported a decline, the most significant was within the North West, whose coastal attractions reported a -19% decline (whilst the North of England recorded a drier than average year, rainfall was not as low as that observed in the South). Following an increase of +3% in 2004, visits to urban attractions remained relatively stable in 2005, declining slightly by -1%.

Over 30%	(83)	43	7	49	-2
England	(1,992)	50	13	37	-*

Although one should note the low base size for attractions with over 30% of visits by overseas visitors, visits to these attractions decreased by an average of -2% in 2005. This represents a significant decline following the increase of +8% reported in 2004.

Many of the attractions with over 30% overseas visits are situated in and around London. As detailed in Section 3.1, London was one of the principal sources of visit decreases between 2004 and 2005.

There was little difference between attractions with more than 30% of visits made by children (-1% decrease in visits) and those with 30% or fewer children (+1%).

3. ENGLISH GOVERNMENT OFFICE REGIONS VISIT TRENDS 2004-2005

This chapter provides an analysis of trends by English Government Office Region (GOR). It is based on 1,992 attractions that provided visits figures for both 2004 and 2005. The trends in these tables should be treated with caution due to the smaller number of attractions when the data is broken down within region.

It should also be noted that up to 2002 results were analysed by Regional Tourist Board areas. As the regional tourism organisations have been restructured within the Regional Development Agency framework, the Government Office Regions, to which RDA areas correspond, are now being used for regional analysis.

3.1 Visit trends 2004-2005 by English Government Office Region

Table 3.1 Overall visits trends 2004-2005 - by English GOR (%)

Region	Attractions sample	Increase	No change	Decrease	% 05/04
North East	(109)	39	19	41	+2

South East	(386)	58	9	33	+3
South West	(363)	40	12	47	-*
England	(1,992)	50	13	37	-*

Visits to attractions showed growth in the majority of regions, with visits to attractions in Yorkshire/The Humber (+8%) and the East (+5%) reporting particularly strong increases.

However, visits to attractions in both the North West (-6%) and London (-5%) declined notably. In London, this followed a strong performance in 2004 when visits were up by (+6%). The negative impact of the July bombings in London on visits to the capital appears to have been significant. London also tends to be adversely affected by fine weather – 2005 being a drier summer than the exceptionally wet summer of 2004. The South West experienced a further slight decline in visits during 2005 (-*), following a decline of -2% in 2004.

The South East (+3%), East Midlands (+3%), West Midlands (+2%) and North East regions all reported modest increases in visits during 2005.

3.2 Visit trends 2004-2005 by attraction category by English GOR

The trends in this table should be treated with particular caution since these are based in many regions on very small samples of attractions providing visits data in both 2004 and 2005.

The increase in visits to Yorkshire/The Humber in 2005 were driven by strong increases in visits to outdoor attractions such as country parks (+38%), gardens (+24%), wildlife attractions/zoos (+7%) and farms (+5%). Visits to museums/art galleries (-1%) declined slightly but not as significantly as in some other regions.

The increase in visits to the East region was also driven primarily by outdoor attractions. However, the East also bucked the national downward trend in visits to museums/art galleries, reporting a +10% increase in visits to attractions in this category in 2005.

Within London, the overall decrease in visits of -5% was driven primarily by declines in visits to indoor attractions - museums/art galleries (-6%) and historic houses/castles (-8%). The overall decline of -6% in the North West was driven by a major decrease within the leisure/theme park sector (-20%). Other attraction categories were reasonably stable in the North West, with some significant increases in visits to gardens (+14%), visitor/heritage centres (+14%), places of worship (+9%) and farms (+8%).

Whilst visits to museums/art galleries decreased by -3% across England as a whole, not every region experienced a decline. Visits to museums/art galleries in the East increased by +10%, in the East Midlands by +7%, in the South East by +3% and in the North East by +2%.

Within the South West region, the fine weather of 2005 was not reflected by significant increases in visits to outdoor attractions. Although visits to country parks (+2%), wildlife attractions/zoos (+2%) and farms (+1%) all increased slightly, these increases were lower than that of England as a whole. Furthermore, visits to gardens fell by -5% in the region.

Whilst visits to both free and paid attractions in 2005 remained stable across England, this masked some variation by region. Yorkshire/The Humber (+11%), East (+6%) and East Midlands (+5%) all reported significant increases in visits to free attractions in 2005. Conversely, visits to free attractions in London (-5%) declined significantly and were responsible for free attractions failing to increase significantly at a national level.

There was also regional variation in visits to paid attractions, with Yorkshire/The Humber (+7%) again reporting a significant increase. West Midlands (+5%) and South East (+4%) also reported notable increases in visits. The North West (-12%) and London (-4%) each recorded notable declines.

The decreases in visits to attractions in the North West were driven primarily by attractions with over 200,000 visits per annum. Visits to these attractions fell by -9% in 2005 within the North West whereas visits to smaller attractions remained relatively stable.

Within London, the decrease in visits was across the board, with both small and large attractions reporting declines. Attractions with over 200,000 visits reported decreases of -5%, whilst those with 100,001-200,000 visits reported decreases of -9%. The smallest attractions with fewer than 20,000 visits also reported declines of an average of -2%.

The increase in visits among Yorkshire/The Humber attractions was driven primarily by the large scale attractions whose visits number 200,000 or more. These attractions recorded an average increase in visits of +10% within the region.

Visits to rural attractions increased within all regions except the South West (-*%), with rural attractions in Yorkshire/The Humber (+9%), East (+7%) and South East (+6%) improving the most.

Visits to urban attractions declined slightly in England overall (-1%), driven by decreases within London (-5%). Only the North West (-1%) and South West (-*%) did visits to urban attractions also fall slightly with visits increasing in other regions. Visits to urban attractions in Yorkshire/The Humber increased most notably (+7%).

The decline in visits to coastal attractions was driven by decreases in visits to the North West, whose visits declined by -19%. Other regions remained fairly stable.

4. ADULT ADMISSION PRICE TRENDS 2004-2005

Around two-thirds of English attractions (64%) charged entry to the main attraction in 2005, slightly higher than the proportions observed in 2003 and 2004. Some 1,045 attractions that were paid admission in both 2004 and 2005 provided admission charges in both years. The average adult admission charge rose by 30p in 2004, an increase of 7%. This was a slightly greater increase than that observed in each of the past three years (which saw increases of 24p (+6%) in 2004 and 20p (+5%) in each of 2002 and 2003).

4.1 Adult admission prices 2004-2005 by English GOR

Table 4.1 shows the percentage change in average adult admission charge between 2004 and 2005 within each Government Office Region.

Table 4.1 Adult admission prices 2004-2005 (paid admission attractions) – by GOR (%)

South West	(244)	£5.08	£5.34	+5
England	(1,045)	£4.63	£4.93	+7

Average increases in admission prices were similar across all regions, although there were minor differences. The highest increases were in the North West (+8%), where charges rose 39p from £4.90 to £5.29, and Yorkshire/The Humber (+8%), where charges rose 28p from £3.76 to £4.04. Increases were more modest in the South West which saw an increase of 26p (+5%).

London continues to report the highest admission charges (£6.16 in 2005), £1.23 higher than the average for England as a whole. Charges in 2005 were lowest in Yorkshire/The Humber (£4.04).

Over 200,000	(87)	£8.87	£9.58	+8
England	(1,045)	£4.63	£4.93	+7

Attractions with higher visitor admissions tended to report higher average adult admission charges. Whereas the average adult admission charge in 2005 was £3.59 among attractions with 20,000 or fewer visits, among attractions with over 200,000 visits average adult admission was £9.58. Increases in average adult admission charges were slightly higher among larger attractions than smaller attractions. Increases among attractions with 20,000 or fewer visits rose by an average of only +6% and increases among those with 20,001-50,000 visits increased by just +5%. Conversely, attractions with over 200,000 visits increased their admission charges by an average of +8%.

Average adult admission charge varied greatly amongst categories, ranging from £2.91 for other historic properties to £11.85 for leisure/theme parks. The two attraction categories representing the highest proportion of paid attractions, museums/art galleries and historic houses/castles (representing over half of paid attractions), reported admission charge increases of +5% and +7% respectively.

Categories with the highest percentage increases in adult admission charges in 2005 were country parks (+24%) and workplaces (+12%). However, one should note the low base sizes for the calculations.

Other attraction categories each recorded similar levels of admission charge increases.

Location	Attractions sample	Average adult charge		% 05/04
		2004	2005
Coastal	(131)	£4.83	£4.69	+7
Rural	(563)	£4.91	£5.24	+7
Urban	(351)	£4.27	£4.53	+6
England	(1,045)	£4.63	£4.93	+7

Rural attractions continued to record the highest average adult admission prices in 2005 (£5.24), higher than both urban (£4.53) and coastal (£4.69) attractions. Whilst urban attractions recorded the highest increases in average adult admission prices in both 2003 and 2004, in 2005 increases were just (+6%) on average, slightly lower than for England as a whole. Coastal attractions reported more significant increases (+7%) than in 2004 (+3%).

4.5 Adult admission prices 2004-2005 by proportion of overseas visits

Table 4.5 Adult admission prices 2004-2005 (paid admission) – by overseas visits (%)

Over 30%	(41)	£5.44	£5.74	+6
England	(1,045)	£4.63	£4.93	+7

Attractions with over 30% of visits from overseas recorded a similar increase in average adult admission prices in 2005 (+6%) as attractions with 30% or fewer overseas visits (+7%). This was also the case in 2004. Attractions with over 30% of visits from overseas have a higher average admission charge (£5.74) than those with fewer than 30% of visits from overseas (£4.80), reflecting the high proportion of attractions with 30% or more overseas visitors that are in London – whose attractions reported the highest average admission charges.

4.6 Adult admission prices 2004-2005 by proportion of child visits

Table 4.6 Adult admission prices 2004-2005 (paid admission) – by child visits (%)

Over 30%	(265)	£5.15	£5.49	+7
England	(1,045)	£4.63	£4.93	+7

Attractions with over 30% of visits by children recorded slightly higher average adult admission prices (£5.49) than those with 30% or fewer child visits (£4.67) in 2005. Both categories of attraction recorded the same percentage increases in average adult admission prices in 2005, as was also the case in 2004.

5. REVENUE AND MARKETING EXPENDITURE TRENDS 2004-2005

5.1 Gross revenue trend 2004-2005

Attractions were asked the trend in their gross revenue from visitors in 2005 compared with 2004 and the percentage change. It should be noted that the average changes below are calculated from percentage changes reported per attraction, not changes in actual revenue figures.

1,779 visitor attraction operators in England provided information on their gross revenue trend in the 2005 survey.

Overall just under half of English attractions (45%) reported an increase in gross revenue from visitors in 2005, the same as that observed in 2004 but lower than that observed in 2003 (53%). Around a third (34%) reported that gross revenue had been similar to that of 2004 and 21% reported a decrease (compared with 22% in 2004 and 18% in 2003). The average change reported in 2005 was +7%, the same as that reported in 2004 but slightly lower than that observed in each of 2003 (+10%) and 2002 (+11%). However, this still represents a marked increase on that observed in 2001 (+1%).

Table 5.1 Gross revenue trend 2004-2005 – by English GOR (%)

South West	(317)	44	29	27	+3
England	(1,779)	45	34	21	+7

Note: percentages read across

All regions saw an increase in gross revenue in 2005, but the South East (+10%), West Midlands (+10%) and North West (+9%) attractions reported the highest average levels of growth. The lowest average increases were reported in the North East (+2%), Yorkshire/The Humber (+3%) and South West (+3%) regions. The regions which saw the greatest and lowest changes in gross revenues were not necessarily the regions with greatest/lowest changes in visits. For example, Yorkshire/The Humber reported a +8% increase in visits but only a +3% increase in gross revenue.

Note: percentages read across

All attraction categories recorded increases in gross revenue in 2005 compared with 2004. Similarly, all attraction categories reported a higher proportion of attractions with increases in gross revenue than decreases.

There were some variations across the categories. Outdoor attractions such as country parks (+14%), gardens (+13%), farms (+10%) and wildlife attractions/zoos (+9%) reported the highest average increases in gross revenue. Steam/heritage railways also reported a notable average increase (+13%) with 82% of these attractions reporting an increase in gross revenue in 2005.

Conversely, attraction categories whose visits declined also experienced lower increases in gross revenue. Gross revenue increased by an average of just +3% among historic houses/castles and +5% among museums/art galleries. Workplaces (+4%) and places of worship (+4%) also experienced below average increases in gross revenue.

Free (+8%) and paid (+6%) attractions recorded similar average increases in gross revenue in 2004.

Note: percentages read across

Attractions across all size bands reported similar positive average increases in gross revenue. However, the proportions of attractions within each category recording increases in gross revenue varied significantly. Attractions with over 100,000 visits recorded higher proportions of attractions with revenue increases than attractions with 50,000 visits or less. This was also the case in both 2003 and 2004.

Table 5.5 Gross revenue trend 2004-2005 – by geographic location (%)

England	(1,779)	45	34	21	+7

Note: percentages read across

Average increases in gross revenue were slightly lower among urban attractions (+5%) in 2005, reflecting the slight decline (-1%) in visits to these attractions.

However, despite visits to coastal attractions declining by -6% in 2005, gross revenues increased by an average of +7%. Admission charges were also only up by +7% - the same as for England as a whole – indicating a growth in other sources of revenue within this sector.

Note: percentages read across

As was the case each of the past three years, attractions with 30% or fewer overseas visits recorded higher average increases in gross revenue (+7%) than attractions with over 30% of overseas visitors (-5%).

5.2 Marketing expenditure trend 2004-2005

This section examines the movement in marketing spend at attractions between 2004 and 2005. Attractions were asked to indicate whether spend had increased, decreased or remained similar compared with 2004. 1,679 attractions answered this question. Actual expenditure was not sought.

Table 5.7 Movement in spend on marketing – by attraction category 2004-2005 (%)

Category	Sample	Increase	Similar	Decrease
Country parks	(78)	21	68	12

Other	(107)	34	58	8
England	(1,679)	25	65	10

Note: percentages read across

25% of attractions indicated an increase in marketing spend between 2004 and 2005 and only 10% a decrease. Whilst the proportion of attractions reporting an increase in expenditure remained the same as in 2004, the proportion reporting a decrease declined slightly (from 13% in 2004).

Steam/heritage railways (37%), leisure/theme parks (32%) and farms (31%) were most likely to state that their marketing expenditure had increased. However, it should also be noted that 21% of leisure/theme parks stated that their marketing expenditure had decreased, a higher proportion than any other attraction category. This was also the case in 2004.

Other historic properties (19%), places of worship (20%), historic houses/castles (20%), visitor/heritage centres (21%) and country parks (21%) were all slightly less likely than other attraction categories to record an increase in expenditure.

Museums/art galleries were slightly less likely to report an increase in marketing expenditure (23%) than attractions as a whole.

The proportion of historic houses/castles reporting an increase in marketing expenditure has declined significantly since 2003. 20% of attractions within this category reported an increase in expenditure in 2005 compared with 23% in 2004 and 34% in 2003.

Table 5.8 Movement in spend on marketing – by English GOR 2004-2005 (%)

South West	(305)	24	65	10
England	(1,679)	25	65	10

Note: percentages read across

Each region recorded a fairly similar proportion of attractions that had increased their marketing expenditure. Only the North East (13%) and, to a lesser extent, London (19%) recorded significantly lower proportions of attractions that had increased their marketing expenditure. Conversely, the East (31%) recorded a significantly higher proportion of attractions that had increased their marketing expenditure.

The North West (17%) reported the highest proportion of attractions whose marketing expenditure had decreased in 2005.

Note: percentages read across

Paid attractions (26%) continued to be more likely to increase their marketing expenditure than free attractions (22%). This was also the case in both 2004 and 2003.

Table 5.10 Movement in spend on marketing – by volume of visits 2004-2005 (%)

England	(1,679)	25	65	10

Note: percentages read across

The largest attractions with 200,000 or more visits were most likely to have changed their marketing expenditure in 2005. Only 57% claimed that their marketing expenditure was similar to the previous year. Conversely, attractions with 20,000 or fewer visits were most likely to claim that their marketing expenditure was similar to that of 2005 (69%).

6. TRENDS IN NUMBER OF VISITS TO ENGLAND ATTRACTIONS 1989-2005

Table 6.1 Trends in number of visits to UK attractions 1989-2005 Indices 1989=100
Constant samples (from one year to next only)

As responding attractions tend to vary between years, operators are asked in each survey year to provide the number of visits for both the survey year and the previous year. This enables the trend between any two years to be calculated based on the same attractions.

Table 6.1 shows the indexed trend based on the visits (see Table 6.3) given by responding attractions. Because the number of responding attractions differs each year (see Table 6.2), the percentage change between any two years is applied each time to the previous year's index to take account of the varying sample sizes each year.

Table 6.2 shows the number of responding attractions in each survey year.

Table 6.3 shows the number of visits to responding attractions. (Note: it does not include estimates of non-responding attractions. Therefore these figures do not represent the total market).

This section of the report lists visits figures for 2005 by responding attractions, together with topline trends. Comparative figures for 2004, 2003, 2002 and 2001 are also shown. Data may not have been obtained for years 2001, 2002, 2003 or 2004. In this case,

- 'DK' indicates that data were not provided

Percentage Change

Only the percentage change 2005/2004 is presented in the tables. This is recorded in the column entitled '% 05/04'. 'n/a' means that this is not applicable e.g. data was not provided/not available for both years.

GUIDELINES TO HELP YOU COMPLETE THE QUESTIONNAIRE

VISITOR ATTRACTION DEFINITION: For the purpose of this research a Visitor Attraction is defined as:

..an attraction where it is feasible to charge admission for the sole purpose of sightseeing. The attraction must be a permanently established excursion destination, a primary purpose of which is to allow access for entertainment, interest, or education; rather than being primarily a retail outlet or a venue for sporting, theatrical, or film performances. It must be open to the public, without prior booking, for published periods each year, and should be capable of attracting day visitors or tourists as well as local residents. In addition, the attraction must be a single business, under a single management, so that it is capable of answering the economic questions on revenue, employment etc.

Organisations that are primarily a retail outlet, but which have an attraction element, should not take part unless separate figures can be provided for the attraction element alone.

SECTION ONE

- 1.1 Please verify the first year of opening to the public provided by your attraction in 2005. If missing or incorrect, please write in correct year.
- 1.2 In order to compare trends among different types of attraction, we have to code each attraction under a specific analysis category; even though more than one type of attraction may exist on the site. Below are the major category groupings on the questionnaire. Please verify the main attraction category that you are coded under for analysis purposes. SECTION TWO

- 2.1 The visitor numbers provided by your attraction for 2004 are shown here. Please verify these. If incorrect or missing please delete and enter correct figures.
- 2.2 In order to reflect the real trends in the attractions' market during 2005, it is important that the visitor figures you provide are as accurate as possible.

If you are responsible for more than one attraction, please complete a separate questionnaire for each. House and garden attractions/estates with free entry to the garden/grounds, but a charge for entry to the house, should provide separate visitor figures for each if unable to complete a separate questionnaire.

The figures you provide for 2005 should preferably be for the calendar year, i.e. January to December. Please also tick the appropriate box to indicate whether the figures you provide are exact or an estimate.

Please ensure that visitor numbers include school children.

- 2.4 Please provide percentage breakdown of adults and children for 2005 not number of individuals. Please also indicate whether figures provided are exact or an estimate.
