Discover England Fund Research Summary Report

The Collection – A Journey through 2000 years of English History

December 2017
Contents

- This report brings together the key findings and insights relevant to this project from across the VisitEngland research programme.
- It is designed to provide the Discover England Fund Large Project teams with a summary of the key themes and relevant market profiles. It can be used to guide project development activity and inform stakeholders and partner organisations.

Note 1: Sources are short-referenced on each page. Full details of data sources including links where appropriate are included in the appendix.

Note 2: Data is not always available for all countries that are relevant to the project, due to limitations of the individual source research projects.
Project overview

Packaging England’s Heritage Cities with London as one product for the International Market:

- Bath
- Cambridge
- Canterbury
- Carlisle
- Chester
- Durham
- Greenwich
- Lancaster
- Lincoln
- Oxford
- Salisbury
- Stratford-Upon-Avon
- York
- Truro
- Worcester

The project is being delivered through four strands of activity:

1. Curation – Curating the Collection so that it is coherent and accessible to US visitors.
2. Interpretation – Storytelling and technology that will be used to define, interpret and communicate most significant moments in history.
3. Distribution – Taking the Collection to market via the trade and direct to the consumer.
4. Welcome – Ensuring the in-destination welcome and service is top quality.

Markets: US eastern seaboard

Demographic: Pre-nesters under 40

Segment: Cultural Adventurers

1. Simplify heritage product in regional England making it easier for international visitors to plan and book.
2. Increase the appeal among US pre-nesters under the age of 40.
3. Strengthen relationships with national, regional heritage organisations and London.
Key Messages and areas of focus

Elevator Pitch
Introducing the Collection, a journey through 2000 years of English history via the most significant historic cities in regional England.
Aimed at younger travellers from the US who are into independent exploration and discovery, the Collection brings fascinating people and momentous events from the past to life using augmented reality to fully immerse visitors in the history and culture of England.
An itinerary planning tool will help consumers plan and book their own journey online while a resource hub of commissionable product supports the travel trade to tailor the Collection to their customers’ requirements.
This is the first time that England’s Heritage Cities have been packaged with London and presented as one product for the international market.

Beyond a recap of the current trends of inbound visitors to regional England (using the most recent data published in 2017 where available), the majority of this report is structured around the four activity strands that Heritage Cities is focused on. Please note, there was limited secondary research available for the Welcome strand.
Perceptions of Britain among Americans are extremely positive and is unchanged post Brexit

Perceptions of Britain - Brexit
- Those on the West Coast are more likely to find the people of Britain welcoming compared to those on the East Coast*
- 91% of departing Americans felt ‘very’ or ‘extremely’ welcome in Britain.

Exchange Rate - Brexit
- There is high agreement that the weak pound makes it a good time to visit Britain.
- However, Britain is still seen as an expensive destination.

Exchange Rate Impact (%) among US market
- The weak pound makes it a good time to visit Britain: 79%
- Britain is still an expensive destination: 65%
- The fall in the pound makes it more likely that I will personally visit Britain: 63%

Perceptions of Britain – Safe & Secure destination
The threat and reality of terror is impacting traveller attitude & behaviour – the US market saw a notable decline in agreement with ‘Britain is a safe and secure destination’ following a number of terrorist attacks during 2017.

Britain is Safe & Secure destination (%) among US market
- Aug-16: 81%
- Feb/Mar-17: 80%
- Sep-17: 75%

Where are they visiting – there continues to be a clear North / South divide in the regions that Americans visit whilst on holiday

Proportion of US visitors who visited each region (2013-2015 avg)

- While there is high consideration among Americans to consider towns and cities outside London, the actual proportion of those visiting regional England beyond the South regions remains relatively small.
- North West and Yorkshire have had more visitors from the US given the gateway in Manchester.

Curation Strand: Overall Aim from the brief

This strand will involve developing the presentation of 15 destinations as a single Collection and linking it to London. It will describe the best way to adapt and tailor the Collection for both the travel trade and the independent visitors as well as establish the ‘destination’ package that will be used to keep visitors in the cities overnight and potentially for several days.
Getting visitors to go beyond London

1a. Curation
The majority of American visitors enter the UK through London but Manchester is also a key gateway for Americans

Gateway mode - US Holiday Visitors to the UK

- 85% of American visitors* travel to the UK by plane. Another 12% arrive through the Channel Tunnel as part of a multi-country trip and 3% by ferry.
- Three airports in the UK welcome 92% of US direct flights into the UK. London Heathrow received more than 3 in 4 direct flights in 2016, followed by Manchester International and London Gatwick with 8% and 7% respectively.

Considerations:
- Partnerships with London is key (and London Plus is already a focus for the project) but Heritage Cities should also consider partnerships with Marketing Manchester given this is another potential gateway for Americans.

*Note: This is all visitors, not just those visiting on holiday.

The majority of visitors tend to stay in or close to the region they have entered, with London and the South dominating visits and nights stayed among US visitors.

US All visits* to the UK in 2016

US Visitors*: % Nights Stayed / % Visits
Those on the East Coast are less likely to visit cities outside London compared to their West Coast counterparts.

Considerations: The data below suggests the West Coast should also be considered a target if travel trade partners are available. Those on the West Coast are significantly more likely to visit a higher number of places during their visit. The average number of places visited gives some indication of how many Cities you should bundle together within the proposition based on recent traveller behaviour.

3 Core Challenges

1) Transportation: An understanding of how to get to places in England
   - We know globally, that visitors are willing to travel 2-3 hours from their initial base (typically London) to stay in another destination.
   - Their preference is for train travel due to concerns about driving. But there is low awareness of how to get there.

2) Competing with other destinations
   - When considering Britain as a destination, France, Italy and Spain* are top of mind.
   - Perceptions of poor weather in England plays a factor in decision making - around 50%* of Californians and Tri-State area residents said they were less likely to choose somewhere for an international vacation where the weather is bad.

3) Low awareness of regional England
   - Awareness of regional England is the biggest challenge to overcome – through partnerships, there is a need to grow awareness and help inbound visitors imagine the experience they will have outside London.

* Source: Key States of America Consumer Report, June 2017
1) Transportation: Travel via train from London should not be a barrier to visiting the majority of heritage cities as most visitors are willing to travel 2-3 hours.

Considerations:
- Their preference is for train travel due to concerns about driving – this is also something to consider when choosing accommodation which may be in the hinterlands.
- Packaged tours and itineraries were also mentioned to enable them to get the most from the trip.

Source: Discover England: summary insights on overseas visitors to England’s regions
1) Transportation: There is high appeal in using a train pass to explore the best of Britain by train, but the lack of detailed information can be a barrier.

US: Some of the things you can do in Britain, which are appealing …

- Spend the night in a castle
- Use a train pass to explore the best of Britain by train
- Sample local specialities at one of Britain's many farmers' markets
- Feast on fresh fish and chips from Cardiff's 'Chip Alley'
- Visit TV and film locations, for example from The Crown, Downton Abbey,…
- Sip your way through the Scotch Whiskey Trail
- Watch a Premier League match in one of Britain's football cities
- Volunteer on an organic British farm

Considerations:

1. Simplify and provide targeted information (via your website) on public transport options for each target market. Heritage Cities are undertaking a rail mapping exercise already.
2. List travel times from major hubs to your destination(s).
3. Promote BritRail passes and pre-booking e.g. highlight that booking trains in advance reduces cost considerably.
4. Promote off-peak/shoulder seasons when transport is quieter.

- For destinations that need to be reached using public transport (rail, bus or coach), the lack of detailed information is a barrier to international travellers:
  - They wouldn’t know how to get outside of London.
  - Over-estimate journey times between destinations.
  - They don’t have the confidence.

- Particularly among visitors from the US, there is a perception that travel is too expensive outside London.
- However, inbound visitors from the US who have experienced our rail system are generally positive.

2) Competing with other destinations: Those in the target demographic are more likely to consider a wider set of destinations when considering Britain but Europe is the main competitor

2) Competing with other destinations: Unfortunately the weather factors into the decision making process, and for those on the East Coast, rain has a fairly strong association with Britain.

- For some, especially in the Tri-State, sunny weather is a fairly important factor.
- And while associations with Britain for both Californians and those in the Tri-State area focus on London, Big Ben, history and culture, rain also features fairly frequently among those in the Tri-State area.

3) Awareness of regional England is the biggest challenge to overcome – inbound visitors cannot imagine the experience they will have outside London because of lack of knowledge of what is on offer.

Main Barriers of travelling beyond London

1) Low top of mind awareness of Regional England
Do not underestimate the lack of knowledge of places to visit outside London.
Among visitors planning a trip to England, London is the most mentioned place.

2) Lack of understanding of what to do / expect of a holiday in Regional England
Inbound visitors find it hard to imagine the type of holiday they would have – knowledge of culture and attractions outside London is low.

3) And lastly, lack of available time for short stay visitors if starting in London
Visitors often think there is too much to do in London which discourages them from looking at other options.

Considerations: Helping consumers imagine regional England
Compare England offer favourably with similar, well-known 'regional' offers in other countries.

Source: Visit England International Omnibus, 2013

Source: VisitBritain Beyond London, 2013
3) Awareness of regional England: Cambridge and Oxford have relatively high prompted awareness but other Heritage Cities are less well known, especially among the target age group

Considerations:
- Given the relatively high awareness of Cambridge and Oxford across the target age groups and their close proximity to London, these cities could be a starting point for first time visitors to the Heritage Collection.
- We know that knowledge of regional England increases among previous visitors – who may be more likely to travel further afield.

Promoted awareness of British Cities

Optimizing itineraries – multi-locations / duration
Currently only 9% of inbound visitors across all markets to England are doing multi-destination holidays in England. Of this 9%, 47% visit 2 or more regions in England outside of London.

- Whereas 15% of trips to the UK are multi-destination trips of UK destinations, only 9% are multi-destination trips to England destinations. This demonstrates the high volume of holiday multi-destination trips involving Scotland.
- Currently, those who are London Plus are more likely to have visited just one other region. While those who are non-London multi-destination trips are more likely to have visited 2 or more regions.

Share of multi-destination visits – all markets (avg. 2013-2015)

- All UK:
  - 7% London Plus
  - 8% Multi-destination non-London

- ANY NON-LONDON MULTI-DESTINATION: 36%
- Non-London Multi-Destination (single region only): 11%
- Non-London Multi-Destination (2+ regions): 25%

Definitions

- London Plus - a visitor who stayed in both London and at least one other destination in the UK / England for at least one night.
- Multi-destination non-London – a visitor who stayed for at least one night in two or more destinations in the UK / England, but did NOT stay in London.

Important note: Multi-destination visitors include only those who stayed overnight in more than one destination. They exclude visitors who only took day trips to other destinations from their single place of stay. A further report will be produced later in 2017 which incorporates these day trips, using questions placed on the IPS during 2016.

Those in North America are already taking London Plus holidays, more so than are taking multi-destination holidays in England which exclude London.

Source markets: US

- Long haul visitors (US included) are more likely to be London Plus visitors (+1 or more regions) while visitors from Europe are more likely to be visiting multi-destinations outside of London.

A point on seasonality:
- Multi-destination holiday trips to England are significantly more likely than single destination trips to occur over the summer period, with 50% of multi-destination trips to England taking place between July and September. This is similar for both London Plus (48%) and non-London multi-destination (53%) trips.
- Multi-destination holiday trips are much less likely than single destination trips to take place between October and March.

Considerations:
- As Heritage Cities are positioning their product as an all-round opportunity, it should consider the seasonality that is evident among those who are talking multi-destination trips within England.

The South East and South West are the most visited regions overall – and most likely to be visited in combination

- These two regions are even more dominant when it comes to multi-destination holiday trips. This is the case for both London Plus holiday trips and, in particular, multi-destination holiday trips which do not involve London.
- Around half of visitors on non-London multi-destination holiday trips visit both the South East and South West. Indeed, this is by far the most common regional visit combination.
- Although the South East and South West are also the most frequently stayed in regions within the London Plus market, the North West (24% of London Plus holiday trips involve a stay in this region) and to a lesser extent, Yorkshire (15%) are also well represented.

Considerations:
- Based on the above, potential product itineraries should be tested:
  - NW / YO – Carlisle, Lancaster, Chester and York.

When thinking about itineraries, Heritage Cities should also consider that a relatively high proportion of visits to Britain, especially among the target age group, involve stays in other countries.

Other countries visited at the same time as Britain

- Californians are more likely to visit multiple countries as part of their trip to Britain, with France, Italy and Spain top choices. Tri-Staters are more likely to only visit Britain.
- 18-44 year olds are more likely to visit other countries at the same time as Britain.

Considerations:
- Are there other package tours in Europe, particularly France and Italy which offer similar experiences to Heritage Cities where partnerships can be developed?

Optimising itineraries - activities / experiences
It is a known fact that history and heritage are key drivers for visitation to England and is a key focus for the product – but some US visitors also want experiences which deliver a sense of adventure and / or challenge.

- The most considered activities are also the strongest drivers of visitation – a good fit with the Heritage Cities product.
- US visitors are more likely to want a challenge and / or action.
- Food and drink are relatively key, but in the sense of local specialities (gourmet meals is only an average driver).

Considerations:
- While relatively low on the list being pampered is something that appeals more to those in the Tri-State area and younger audiences. Going shopping is also more appealing to younger audiences.
- Consideration of relaxation activities within the package / or accommodation may be something to test further.

- Active activities are popular with the younger segment and have particular appeal in the US market.
- A sense of being challenged could fit well with the Heritage Cities offer - for example, a challenge of visiting multiple historic locations / cities. The AR technology can also play a role in offering a challenge (see later slides).

Considerations:

- We cannot assume that just because the American market is more pre-disposed to active activities that this would fit well with the Heritage Cities product.
  - Specific activities available within the local area should be tested alongside the Heritage Cities offer to understand their fit together.
- The current research available is limited to activities rather than other experiences that can offer a sense of being challenged.
  - This concept should also be tested either through specific experiences or within marketing messaging testing.

Food Experiences: Food & drink is rarely the main reason to visit England* but can play a significant supporting role

Consideration of Food experiences – US market:

- Local food & drink: 71%
- Have a gourmet meal: 64%
- Food & drink tour or attraction: 61%

- Trying British dishes is of interest, particularly fish & chips (56% extremely/very interested), roast dinners (53%), full English breakfasts (52%), and afternoon teas (46%).
- Typically, higher interest comes from the US when compared to the global average.

- There is an appetite to try food & drink related activities among those considering visiting England.
- There is most interest across all target markets in trying local food & drink specialities compared to other food experiences – and the low association of some of these could be expressed as an unique experience:

Visit Britain have a site dedicated to promoting Food Hubs and Itineraries for the trade industry - https://trade.visitbritain.com/destination-uk/food-and-drink/

* GFK NBI July 2014: Only 5% of 2015 visitors across all markets stated that Food & drink was the main reason for visiting England

Food Experiences (cont.): The US audience generally has good perceptions of food in England. But they do look at reviews so any suggested food experiences promoted within the package need to be of good quality.

Satisfaction with Food & drink among US visitors to England (%)

- Satisfaction (among visitors): 89%
- British food products are good quality: 71%
- Good place to buy local food & drink: 72%

Considerations:
- 34% of Americans have used social media to look for recommendations for places to eat or drink whilst on holiday. This is higher than the global average 30%.
- 68% of Americans have used a smartphone to access reviews about places to eat or drink. This is higher than the global average of 54%.

• Food experiences certainly should play a supporting role in the Heritage Cities offer.
• Given the American’s high use of technology to find places and access reviews, if not already considered, helping visitors find unique or the best places to sample local food and drink should be considered.

Source: VisitBritain Food & Drink Research, 2017
There is a real desire to experience new and different experiences among Americans - this is not only in terms of the activities but perhaps types of accommodation in the offer.

- New and different experiences are an important part of international vacations for both those in Tri-State area and California (44%/45%).
- Spending the night in a castle and exploring Britain by train are the most attractive experiences from the batch of experiences tested. Travelers in the Tri-State area are more likely to say farmers' markets are appealing.

Future Traveler Trend – The Pursuit of Real

Genuine, authentic tourism products are preferred by future travellers as they seek to get rid of their “tourist” stamp and experience their destination like a local instead.

Reducing the hassle of finding good quality accommodation for visitors is key

Key Challenges:

• From a traveller perspective, accommodation is not seen a key motivating factor and can be a hassle to find:
  • Accommodation is not a motivator for visiting England; only 16% of visitors see the variety & quality of accommodation as a motivator.
  • Overall trend for England holiday visits (excluding London) shows the biggest increase is in hotels/guest houses.
  • Potential for growth in alternative accommodation – bed and breakfast, camping etc.

Discover England’s cultural Collection

I know that England has lots of history and heritage, but other than sites in London, I don’t really know where they are or why they are so important to world history.

‘The Collection’ brings you the most important, magnificent and significant cities in English history – cities that have shaped the country and the world today. Travel among them and see their impact vividly brought to life via stories of real people and events – you will be surprised, scandalised and educated in equal measure!

These 13 historic cities and sites across the country have witnessed some of the most important moments in England’s past, from Roman times to the present day. Their stories of learning and power, religion and royalty, trade and commerce are all brought to life via a unique downloadable App. It gets you deeper into the historic events and people that lived through the years, revealing how their influence is still relevant to our lives today. The App will also help you make the best of the strong rail and road links between the sites and with London, making it easy for you to explore as many cities as you wish. Wherever you go, you’ll find great independent hotels, pubs, restaurants, cafes and tea shops that all pride themselves on a warm welcome and personal service.

The Collection – a journey through 2000 years of English History.

“Learning about the area I would be visiting and feeling a connection to history of sorts...putting a "face" to the names of places and things I may have heard or read about at some point.”

“Sounds like everything would be done for you and you will be able to see everything important.”

“The diversity of places and being able to go on a more leisurely pace.”

Implications

• The concept is understood and positively received and provides a window on England and it’s history.
• There are concerns around the logistics that need to be addressed in both product and communications.
• Some flexibility and personalisation of routes would be beneficial.
2. Interpretation
Interpretation: Overall Aim

This strand will focus on storytelling, both pre- and post-arrival, animating the product and enhancing the tools and developing formats that will be deployed to communicate the Collection to the trade and consumers.
The Heritage Cities concept sits well with future travel trends and should resonate well with Americans given they are a highly developed tech market.

Interpretation – Storytelling and technology that will be used to define, interpret and communicate most significant moments in history.

Future Traveler Trend – The Leisure Upgrade

- Skill seeking future travellers will prefer tourism products that combine fun and an opportunity to learn.

> “Entertainment should be about learning new things as much as simply having fun” | % who agree strongly or agree

- US: 73%

> “Don’t put everything into a glass box and expect people to come, because they will just be bored. If you look at the average consumer today, they are more demanding, more sophisticated, more culturally aware, have travelled further. There is built heritage, natural heritage and cultural heritage. Cultural heritage is all about people and food and wine and that one has become more important than the others. Culture is no longer dead, the cultural is alive and that experience economy is driving everything”.

  IAN YEOMAN, TOURISM FUTURIST

Tech ownership

Smart phones are almost universal, over half have a tablet. Smartwatches are also prevalent in US.

Social Media Usage

- Facebook and YouTube dominate
- US has much higher usage of all social media channels.

Source: Technology and Social Media, 2016
In the US, staying connected and the use of technology is now an accepted part of the holiday experience.

Tech on holiday

- US
  - I like to stay connected when on holiday: 77%
  - My smartphone is essential when I go on holiday: 81%
  - My tablet is essential when I go on holiday: 69%

Reviews on holiday destinations

- Access reviews about..
  - Attractions/places to see on holiday: 66% done, 23% not done but interested
  - Places to eat or drink on holiday: 68% done, 21% not done but interested

- 53% enjoy writing
- 67% trust reviews

Considerations:

- Social media is not widely used during the holiday for recommendations and planning, suggesting that this information is sought from destination and attraction websites, specialist review sites etc.

Geo-Tourist

- Geo-Tourist is an audio tour site and app that uses GPS data to play informative audio clips around touristic routes and advertise nearby offers and services to users.

  “I can’t think of anyone who wouldn’t want to be given a promotion like free drinks at the bar when they are nearby. I think it’s helpful as well if apps or companies let you know what activities and landmarks are around you during your stay so that you don’t miss out on anything.”

  MALE, 34, US
AR is a hot topic not just in the tourism industry, with many applications launching or in the pipeline. Gamification is used in some of these apps – which may resonate with the US audience given they want a sense of challenge

- The success of Pokémon Go is well known – but part of its success could be attributed to the sense of challenge, fun and social dynamic it brings to its users. Others inside and outside the tourism industry are embedding gamification within their apps (see below).
- Restaurants, bars and other catering facilities can use AR solutions for their benefit in several ways: i.e.
  - brand new restaurant menus with an interactive 360-view of each dish, correct portion size and ingredients.
  - using Pokémon Go to lure clients in.
  - navigation help with special mobile apps using AR to provide information about restaurants, cafes and bars nearby.

Amstel, a Dutch beer brand, has launched an innovative sampling campaign using an AR app called "Snatch." Snatch is a treasure hunt gaming app, and if you win the game, your prize is 10,000 free pints of Amstel beer, redeemable at Mitchell & Butler pubs.

Seek, is an augmented reality content sharing platform. Use the map to find AR content in the world around you. While searching the map you can also win prizes like gift cards, VR gear and TVs etc. It also allows you to share your AR experiences with friends.

The Village of Ashcroft partnered with augmented reality company, QuestUpon, to create an original walking tour for people to experience the authentic stories of this official hot spot of Canada.
Feedback so far on the Heritage Cities AR app from Apple Store and Google Store users

“Incredibly interesting app. Didn’t know about Chester’s crazy history before I got this app, can’t wait to head to another city to try this out again!”

“The app doesn’t properly explain how to use augmented reality part, so I found myself randomly tapping different areas to see if anything worked. Nothing I tried actually did. Disappointed”

“Amazing app! You can learn a lot of things about British history. Easy to use and beautiful design”

“It needs work. Not all the scans worked for me, because they were paintings in a museum and the lighting wasn’t bright enough. An option to see the material without the scan would be nice. Also, audio would be better than text (it’s almost expected these days), especially for those of us whose eyesight isn’t what it was”
There are many sources in the public domain which highlight the key components of any travel app – highlighting links to other apps which have already been developed

Suggested aspects for a travel app:

1) Trip planner - an organizer for a whole trip, where the user can store tickets, schedules, destinations, contacts, etc. Top examples here could be TripIt and Google Trips.

2) Hotel booking: find and book the cheapest, cosiest and most suitable hotel, hostel or apartment. The market is dominated by giants like Booking.com, AirBnB, and Trivago, who provide their apps for free. Therefore all that is required is a map with geotagging/geolocation and a hotel booking app.

3) Ticket booking: global players like KAYAK, Skyscanner and Expedia rule the parade here. But this is also the most competitive segment, as nearly every major transportation company has its own app. The apps need access to the data of transportation companies (FlightStats or Uber APIs). However, this is a point where local players might be better, because of the better understanding of the domestic transportation system, especially buses and trains.

4) Reviews and feedback: relevant not only for the places to stay but also for the places the user would like to visit and services they are going to use. The best example here might be the TripAdvisor app. TripAdvisor provides their rating content for free.

5) Weather forecast: minor, but nearly a “must have” feature in an app. There are hundreds of weather apps, the best way to introduce such feature into an app is to incorporate any of the available free apps.

6) Maps and geolocation: a backbone of every travel app. There are well known (default) players like Google maps and Apple maps, plus smaller ones, but with their distinctive features like HERE WeGo and Maps.me. The available comprehensive Google maps, SDK, Facebook and Google Places apps are provided for free. One more “must have” feature – it has to work offline.

7) Guides and spot finders: one more point where locals have an advantage over huge players. Use Google maps app, put some unusual places in your city on it, describe them, add some cool interesting story about it and some photos/videos. Et voila, you have a ready to go travel app.

8) Socializing: adding a social component to your app is a great idea. Starting from trivial sharing and posting possibilities through to integration with preferred social networks through apps like Facebook or Instagram. Or adding a comprehensive messaging or friend-finding feature on your own.

3a. Distribution
- Travel Trade Partnerships
This strand will focus on the distribution and promotion of our new product via the trade and direct to consumers via existing promotional platforms. The focus will be on channels and activities that are appropriate to younger US audiences.
Travel Trade – SWOT

- History & Heritage are key interests
- The chance to experience local culture & lifestyle
- Scenery & countryside – hotels in the hinterland
- Interest in rural England and the English way of life
- Personalisation is a growing trend

- Brexit – short term opportunity (favourable exchange rate)
- Millennials – time poor and happy to be 'packaged'
- Culinary experiences – offering distinctly English food
- Offer distinctive accommodation (i.e. castles)

- More developing of the existing offer rather than radical new (see following)
- Clear transport information and support
- Raise awareness through joint marketing

- London dominates as destination
- Lack of awareness beyond London, esp. North
- Accommodation is seen as a 'fundamental' barrier (see following)
- Transport concerns (see following)
- Perception of English food is negative
- Scotland and Ireland are competitors in this context with strong appeal
- England seen as expensive for accommodation, food attractions & travel

- Unwilling to promote a product with unproven demand
- Midlands and North seen as difficult to sell
- Past bad experience of trying to sell Central and Northern England
- London and the South dominate - good for some Historic Cities but not for others
- Good transport is required with regional access

This SWOT is based on travel trade views and how they perceive potential inbound travellers feel about England. As such, they have potential to encourage or discourage visitors.

“London is both a blessing and a curse”
US operator

“The northern areas of England are beautiful and have a lot to offer. The problem is that there is no consumer marketing and no help to provide inspiration to potential visitors”.

- Availability & capacity – hotels don’t provide fixed rates and allocations in advance
- Poor quality and excessive cost
- Lack of flexible/twin rooms
- Self-catering difficult to book
- Poor service standards and welcome

- Lack of regional flights
- Seasonal lack of ferries
- Nervousness of left-hand-drive,
- Rail issues (price, gaps, trains etc.,)
Accommodation is seen as a barrier for development of England’s tourism by the Travel Trade

Overall Availability & Capacity

Occupancy data shows England running at 81% - 85% capacity over the summer months, leaving little opportunity for additional bookings and supporting the Travel Trade concerns around availability in Peak season.

Bed space occupancy (typically at 60% or less) suggest some scope for increasing group size (family/couples), but perhaps also reflect the Travel Trade view that there is a lack of flexible/twin rooms.

Travel trade say there is a lack of willingness from many hotels to provide fixed rates and allocations more than 6 months in advance.

Availability & Capacity by type and location

Highest August occupancy areas:

- South West: 87%
- South East: 83%
- Greater London: 82%

This amplifies the Travel Trade concern as they tend to favour the South of England.

August occupancy highlights a challenge particularly for seaside accommodation.

The Travel Trade finds it difficult to book smaller accommodation (self-catering, B&B, small hotels etc.).

Accommodation is seen as a barrier for development of England’s tourism by the Travel Trade

Travel Trade have concerns around Quality and Value of Accommodation

Accommodation in England is perceived to be

- Poor quality
- Expensive
- Poor service standards and welcome
- Perception of food quality

“Ban carpets in bathrooms, it is possibly the greatest pet hate.”

“There have been programme ideas who never made it beyond the idea stage as the required accommodation was not available.”

While these views may not be reflect in visitor experiences, they present a barrier to be overcome in convincing the Travel Trade of the England Opportunity.

Actions
The Travel Trade put forward a number of potential actions to address the accommodation concerns:

- Offer distinctive accommodation (i.e. castles)
- Building access to additional (alternative) accommodation types should both address the desire for authentic experiences and the capacity challenge
- Trade rates
- Price stability
- Release periods on room allocations
- Centralised booking mechanisms e.g. for smaller/specialised accommodation – B&B’s, cottages
- Focus on off-peak, whilst Peak capacity remains an issue

Travel Trade have concerns around transport & accessibility particularly to regional England

These concerns span all forms of transport:

- Lack of regional flights
- Nervousness of left-hand-drive
- Rail concerns (prices, train quality & comfort, gaps in geographic coverage)

While these views may not be reflected in visitor experiences, they present a barrier to be overcome in convincing the Travel Trade of the England opportunity and will not help with building traveller confidence.

Actions

The “UK Rail Revolution” put forward by EuroMonitor at WTM 2017 reference of medium-term projects that have potential to improve rail travel for visitors and, importantly act as positive PR for trade and potential, travellers:

Short-term actions

Better accessible travel information for trade and travellers (routes, journey times, ticketing etc.). Greater language capability at gateways and key hubs. Integrated travel solutions focused on regional accessibility. Provide reasonable price options.

Online Travel Agents are an increasingly important part of the travel trade

- OTAs have grown over recent years and new brands and propositions have been launched. Airbnb has over 3m listings, Booking.com has nearly doubled in size since 2015. Consolidation has led to Expedia and Priceline, Orbitz Worldwide and Travelocity dominating (they control 95% of the US market).
- Most operate on global or at least multi-market platforms. Technology drives the offer; app solutions are increasingly popular.
- With an ethos of ‘making travel easier’ they are looking to incorporate a wider range of travel activities into their portfolios.

OTA’s are also seen as providing a wide choice and easy to use. However the brands are not necessarily differentiated and therefore loyalty appears to be low.

The planning stages: There are four stages to the planning process; 60% of visitors from the US start to think about their trip more than 6 months in advance, with most deciding on the destination more than 3 months in advance. Timing of marketing campaigns will need to reflect this.

Length of time for each stage (%) – US market:

- Started thinking about their trip: 10% More than 6 months before, 21% 3-6 months before, 60% 1-2 months before, 3% Less than 1 month before
- Decided on the destination: 9% More than 6 months before, 15% 3-6 months before, 36% 1-2 months before, 4% Less than 1 month before

Price Sensitivity and the role of Online Travel Agents

- Britain is perceived as an expensive place to visit by many. Unsurprisingly therefore 9/10 visitors do some form of price comparison before booking.
- Long-haul bookers are more active in seeking out price comparisons, perhaps reflecting the greater overall spend.

Reaching the consumer in the US

Broadcast media
- TV (Live + DVR) reached 226 million users in 2016.
- On an average day in Q1 2016, Americans aged 18 and over watched TV for about five hours (live and DVR). Younger Americans (18 to 34 years) spent less time watching TV than those aged 50 and over, around three hours and seven hours per day respectively.

Radio
- Americans listen to the radio for an average of 1 hour and 52 minutes each day.

Magazines
- AARP The Magazine is the world’s largest-circulation magazine, with more than 47 million readers, targeting the 50+ audience. Other US magazines with a high circulation are AARP Bulletin, Better Homes And Gardens, Game Informer Magazine, Good Housekeeping, Family.

Newspapers
- 169 million Americans read at least one newspaper each month. Readers of newspapers are relatively well educated and have a relatively high income. The digital distribution of newspapers has attracted more younger readers.

Online media
- The growth in digital media usage time in the past few years is driven by smartphone usage. Mobile represented about two third of digital media time spent in June 2016.
- The apps with the highest number of unique US visitors (18+, June 2016) were Facebook, Facebook Messenger, YouTube, Google Maps and Google Search. Snapchat is becoming more popular across age groups.
- The social networks with the highest number of monthly users in the US are Facebook (171 million), Instagram (77 million) and Pinterest (69 million).

Welcome: Overall Aim

This strand will ensure that the welcome for international visitors is top-quality and relevant for the target group. It is aimed at a broad range of businesses in each destination and will help front line staff to become ambassadors for the destination and the Collection, adding value to a visit through their knowledge of the new narratives relevant to their own destination, but also other destinations in the Collection.
The majority of US visitors who have visited Britain stated they felt welcome, higher than the market average – however, there is some work to do around levels of customer service in food establishments.

Some considerations to make Americans’ feel welcome in England

Accommodation
• As many will arrive in Britain on overnight flights from the US, consideration for early check-in at hotels/accommodation is always appreciated, as well as some form of hospitality/services when they arrive (especially if their accommodation is not ready).
• Americans are used to larger rooms than are generally found in Britain, with their own private bathroom. Americans view accommodation as an important part of the travel experience. They will put a premium on staying at a grand/historic property or a hotel that reflects the local culture.
• The majority of Americans will want to stay in a 3-star plus property in a good/central location. They are used to larger beds.
• Health and wellness is trending in the USA. More Americans are looking for destinations which cater to that interest (e.g. Yoga, meditation, Spa, fitness facilities).

Language
• American English differs in many common words, and Americans find the British accent very interesting. This may cause confusion yet at the same time serve as an ice-breaker for visitors and locals alike. It forms part of the charm and intrigue that Americans appreciate about Britain and adds to the authenticity of the travel experience.
• According to the Central Intelligence agency 79% of Americans’ first language is English, and 13% Spanish.

Tipping
• Americans are very comfortable paying for goods and services with a credit card.
• America has a tipping culture when it comes to service, and tipping between 15-20% of the food total bill is standard. As a result of this, they will expect good service from restaurants, even on the budget side, with tap water provided and refilled as happens routinely in most US restaurants.
Propensity to recommend Britain differs across regions – being highest in London and lowest in the South East and West Midlands

Recommendation by Region - % Extremely likely to recommend – All Markets

Propensity to recommend Britain depends on the area visited. Holiday visitors to London gave the strongest recommendation scores out of all the English regions visited.

Source: IPS 2015
Summary – key take-outs
1a. Curation: Getting visitors to go beyond London

- One of the biggest known challenges is getting visitors to go beyond London - the majority of visitors tend to stay in or close to the region they have entered, with London and the South dominating visits and nights stayed among US visitors. The Heritage Cities team share the following challenges with many of the other DEF projects currently underway:
  1) Transportation – providing greater clarity of how to get around regional England. Travel via train from London should not be a barrier to visiting the majority of heritage cities as most visitors are willing to travel 2-3 hours. The rail mapping exercise underway by the team and communication around ease of booking and journey via our train network should address the transportation issue among those who engage with your product.
  2) Competing with other destinations – particularly Europe and London. Those in the target demographic are more likely to consider a wider set of destinations when considering Britain but Europe is the main competitor.
  3) Low awareness of regional England – helping customers imagine what a holiday in regional England would be like is key. As part of your marketing communications both to the trade and direct with customers, it might help to compare English locations favourably with similar, well-known ‘regional’ offers in other countries. Some cities, particularly Cambridge and Oxford, have relatively high awareness across the target age groups and coupled with their close proximity to London, might be a starting point / or focal point for marketing for first time visitors to the Heritage Collection. We know that knowledge of regional England increases among previous visitors – who may be more likely to travel further afield.

- The available research validates the importance of a partnership with London (the majority of American visitors enter the UK through London) but Manchester is also a key gateway for Americans. If not already in place, a partnership with Marketing Manchester should also be considered. Through another DEF project, Marketing Manchester have a focus on driving more traffic from America to Manchester Airport – and are looking for products across the North of England to add to a Manchester Plus product.

- While we understand there is a focus on travellers from the Eastern Coast of the US, recent research looking at East Coast versus the West Coast of the US indicates that those on the West Coast are more likely to have visited cities outside of London – and the average number of places visited is significantly higher (~5 places visited). If travel trade partners can be found, it is definitely worth considering whether West Coast should be in scope.
  - Furthermore, this data (average number of places visited based on recent traveller behaviour) should provide some guidance as to the optimum number of Cities to combine together within your product proposition.
Summary: Potential Opportunities and Considerations

1b. Curation: Optimizing itineraries – multi-locations / duration

- The current market for multi-destination trips within England is quite small - Currently only 9% of inbound visitors across all markets to England are doing multi-destination holidays in England. Of this 9%, 47% visit 2 or more regions in England outside of London. Those who are London Plus are more likely to have visited just one other region. While those who are non-London multi-destination trips are more likely to have visited 2 or more regions.
  - Coupled with earlier evidence of the average number of places visited, Heritage should carefully consider how many of the Heritage City sites are bundled together to make the product appealing.

- Those in North America are already taking London Plus holidays, more so than are taking multi-destination holidays in England which exclude London. The South East and South West are the most visited regions overall – and most likely to be visited in combination. Although the South East and South West are also the most frequently stayed in regions within the London Plus market, the North West (24% of London Plus holiday trips involve a stay in this region) and to a lesser extent, Yorkshire (15%) are also well represented.
  - Based on the above, potential product itineraries should be tested: 1) SW/SE – Bath, Salisbury, Oxford, Greenwich and Canterbury. 2) NW / YO – Carlisle, Lancaster, Chester and York.

- When thinking about itineraries, Heritage Cities should also consider that a relatively high proportion of visits to Britain, especially among the target age group, involve stays in other countries. Are there other package tours in Europe, particularly France and Italy which offer similar experiences to Heritage Cities where partnerships can be developed?

- A point on seasonality - Multi-destination holiday trips to England are significantly more likely than single destination trips to occur over the summer period As Heritage Cities are positioning their product as an all-round opportunity, it should consider the seasonality that is evident among those who are talking multi-destination trips within England.

- When it comes to the length of time spent in England, London Plus holiday visitors stay the most number of nights, with 62% spending 8 nights or more in England. London Plus visitors stay longer than non-London multi-destination visitors (only 53% of these visitors staying 8 nights or more). Conversely, almost half (48%) of visitors on a London only holiday trip stay only 1-3 nights. This is significantly higher than those on a single destination holiday trip to a destination outside of London (36%).
Summary: Potential Opportunities and Considerations

1c. Curation: Optimizing itineraries – activities and experiences

- It is a known fact that history and heritage are key drivers for visitation to England and is a key focus for the product – but some US visitors also want experiences which deliver a sense of adventure and / or challenge.
  - 37% of Americans are likely to consider challenge / action activities when on holiday – compared to the market average, Americans over-index on many active activities. However, we cannot assume that just because the American market is more pre-disposed to active activities that this would fit well with the Heritage Cities product. Specific activities available within the local area should be tested alongside the Heritage Cities offer to understand their fit together and / or consider building in challenges into your VR product offering (similar to those that made the PokemonGo app a success).

- The types of activities preferred whilst on holiday do not differ too much between East and West Coast residents of the US – exploring cities, visiting famous landmarks and trying local food and drink are top preferences
  - Food experiences certainly should play a supporting role in the Heritage Cities offer. Given the American’s high use of technology to find places and access reviews, if not already part of the proposition, helping visitors find unique or the best places to sample local food and drink should be considered.
  - While relatively low on the list being pampered is something that appeals more to those in the Tri-State area and younger audiences. Going shopping is also more appealing to younger audiences. Consideration of relaxation activities within the package / or accommodation may be something to test further.

- There is a real desire to experience new and different experiences among Americans - this is not only in terms of the activities but perhaps types of accommodation in the offer.
Summary: Potential Opportunities and Considerations

2. Interpretation:

• The Heritage Cities concept sits well with future travel trends and should resonate well with Americans given they are a highly developed tech market
  • In the US, staying connected and the use of technology is now an accepted part of the holiday experience.
  • Social media is not widely used during the holiday for recommendations and planning, suggesting that this information is sought from destination and attraction websites, specialist review sites etc.
  • As previously mentioned, helping visitors find unique or the best places to sample local food and drink should be considered within the app – as well as location based information and promotions.

• AR is a hot topic not just in the tourism industry, with many applications launching or in the pipeline. Gamification is used in some of these apps – which may resonate with the US audience given they want a sense of challenge
  • The success of Pokémon Go is well known – but part of its success could be attributed to the sense of challenge, fun and social dynamic it brings to its users. Others inside and outside the tourism industry are embedding gamification within their apps (see below).
  • Restaurants, bars and other catering facilities can use AR solutions for their benefit in several ways: i.e.
    • brand new restaurant menus with an interactive 360-view of each dish, correct portion size and ingredients.
    • using Pokémon Go to lure clients in.
    • navigation help with special mobile apps using AR to provide information about restaurants, cafes and bars nearby.

• If not already considered, Heritage Cities should stay connected to the voice of the customer (listening to feedback via social channels as well as within locations) to adapt the AR product as it gains traction. Suggestions have already been given via some social channels which are worth considering – in particularly the audio option.
Summary: Potential Opportunities and Considerations

3. Distribution: Travel Trade Perceptions

• It goes without saying that the travel trade have potential to encourage or discourage visitors – they are also a key ally in helping us promote regional England. There are many strengths in the Heritage Cities offering but there are some challenges to overcome:
  • Unwilling to promote a product with unproven demand, in particular the North seen as difficult to sell
  • Past bad experience of trying to sell Central and Northern England
  • London and the South dominate – good for some Heritage Cities but not for others
  • Accommodation is seen as a ‘fundamental’ barrier - Occupancy data shows England running at 81% - 85% capacity over the summer months, leaving little opportunity for additional bookings and supporting the Travel Trade concerns around availability in Peak season

• The Travel Trade put forward a number of potential actions to address the accommodation concerns:
  • Offer distinctive accommodation (i.e. castles)
  • Building access to additional (alternative) accommodation types should both address the desire for authentic experiences and the capacity challenge
  • Trade rates
  • Price stability
  • Release periods on room allocations
  • Centralised booking mechanisms e.g. for smaller/specialised accommodation – B&B’s, cottages
  • Focus on off-peak, whilst Peak capacity remains an issue

• The Travel Trade have concerns around transport & accessibility particularly to regional England. These concerns span all forms of transport:
  • Lack of regional flights
  • Nervousness of left-hand-drive
  • Rail concerns (prices, train quality & comfort, gaps in geographic coverage)

While these views may not be reflected in visitor experiences, they present a barrier to be overcome in convincing the Travel Trade of the England opportunity and will not help with building traveller confidence.
Summary: Potential Opportunities and Considerations

3. Distribution: Direct with Customers

• There are four stages to the planning process; 60% of visitors from the US start to think about their trip more than 6 months in advance, with most deciding on the destination more than 3 months in advance. Timing of marketing campaigns will need to reflect this.

• Online and offline influences both play a role in helping Americans plan their vacation – online reviews and word of mouth are key. Different sources are used throughout the decision making process – Word of mouth is most influential when deciding on the destination but tourism boards’ sites play an important role when deciding what to do at the destination.

• Price Sensitivity and the role of Online Travel Agents - Britain is perceived as an expensive place to visit by many. Unsurprisingly therefore 9/10 visitors do some form of price comparison before booking. Long-haul bookers are more active in seeking out price comparisons, perhaps reflecting the greater overall spend. OTA’s play a significant role in enabling travellers to be confident with the price they are paying. OTA’s are also seen as providing a wide choice and easy to use. However the brands are not necessarily differentiated and therefore loyalty appears to be low.

• 70% of those in the US booked their holiday to Britain as part of a package – and more importantly the US visitor is more likely to book transport and activities in advance of their trip. Word of mouth and travel review sites play a big role in helping the US consumers decide on their itinerary prior to their holiday.
Summary: Potential Opportunities and Considerations

4. Welcome

• The majority of US visitors who have visited Britain stated they felt welcome, higher than the market average – however, there is some work to do around levels of customer service in food establishments.

Some considerations to make Americans’ feel welcome in England

Accommodation

• As many will arrive in Britain on overnight flights from the US, consideration for early check-in at hotels/accommodation is always appreciated, as well as some form of hospitality/services when they arrive (especially if their accommodation is not ready).
• Americans are used to larger rooms than are generally found in Britain, with their own private bathroom. Americans view accommodation as an important part of the travel experience. They will put a premium on staying at a grand/historic property or a hotel that reflects the local culture.
• The majority of Americans will want to stay in a 3-star plus property in a good/central location. They are used to larger beds.
• Health and wellness is trending in the USA. More Americans are looking for destinations which cater to that interest (e.g. Yoga, meditation, Spa, fitness facilities).

Language

• American English differs in many common words, and Americans find the British accent very interesting. This may cause confusion yet at the same time serve as an ice-breaker for visitors and locals alike. It forms part of the charm and intrigue that Americans appreciate about Britain and adds to the authenticity of the travel experience.
• According to the Central Intelligence agency 79% of Americans’ first language is English, and 13% Spanish.

Tipping

• Americans are very comfortable paying for goods and services with a credit card.
• America has a tipping culture when it comes to service, and tipping between 15-20% of the food total bill is standard. As a result of this, they will expect good service from restaurants, even on the budget side, with tap water provided and refilled as happens routinely in most US restaurants.

Updated segment profiles
Data sources
VisitBritain have been working on a new segmentation, that provides even greater insight into profiles, travel attitudes and behaviours. In this new segmentation, Cultural adventurers share many characteristics of the Culture Buffs segment, but also some of those of Sightseers for older Cultural adventurers and Buzzseekers for the younger ones.
