VFR Travel Trends - UK

- 43 million trips were made last year in the UK to visit friends and relatives.
- Although VFR trips account for a high share of total trip volume, their share of value is considerably less – perhaps reflecting the high proportion (82%) staying at the home of their friends or family.
- Trips to friends and family are more likely than average to be made to large cities/towns (46% vs. 40% overall) or small towns (30% vs. 24% overall).
- VFR trips are generally slightly shorter than trips overall (35% are only for one night).
- Although there is a fairly equal seasonal distribution, visits to friends and family peak during the October – December period, probably reflecting Christmas visits to friends and family.
