1.1 Key statistics: journey purpose

Journey purpose 2016

- 45% of all visits to the UK from Poland were made for business purposes, followed by 40% of visits made to visit friends and/or relatives in 2016. The proportion of holiday visits is well below average.
- 46% of holiday visits from Poland to the UK in 2015 (excl. UK nationals) were made by repeat visitors (well below the European average of 67%). These repeat visitors came on average between two and three times (a medium average visit frequency compared to other markets) and spent on average £799 in the UK in the past ten years.

Journey purpose trend (visits 000s)

- Business visits and those visiting friends and/or family have led growth in recent years and set new records in 2016 with 872,000 and 760,000 visits respectively. 78% of Polish business visits to the UK came by lorry in 2016 (delivery/pick up of goods).
- In 2016, 41% of spending came courtesy of visits to friends and/or relatives, 26% from business visits and 17% from holiday visits.
- 94% of those coming to the UK for business visits (excl. expats) had been to the UK before, followed by those coming to visit friends or relatives who live in the UK (73%).

1.1 Key statistics: seasonality

Seasonality 2016

- Visitors from Poland show excellent seasonal spread supporting tourism in the UK in high but also low and shoulder season. With Polish visits fairly evenly distributed throughout the year, the strongest quarters for visits are the first and the last quarter of the year.
- The volume of visits is fairly similar for the first and last quarter which both peaked in 2016 at new record levels. The summer months also showed growth and closed not far off pre-financial crisis records by volume. The April-June period set a record in 2015 with 460,000 visits which was almost matched in 2016.

1.1 Key statistics: length of stay and accommodation

Accommodation stayed in, 2016 (nights, %share)

- Short trips of 1-3 nights are the most popular duration of stay among Polish visitors (accounting for 47% of Polish visits), followed by 4-7 nights (26%). 23% of Polish visitors stayed longer than a week.
- One form of accommodation clearly dominates the picture with more than three out of five visitor nights spent staying for free with relatives or friends. Rented houses/flats and other forms of accommodation were also popular, making up 13% and 11% of nights in 2016. Less than one in ten nights were spent in a hotel/guest house in the same year.

- London is the leading destination for a trip to Britain, accounting for 29% of visitor nights, although this is well below the 40% share of nights London receives from all visitors to the UK.
- South East, West Midlands and North West are also popular, based on the average nights spent in the UK from 2014-2016. Poles are more likely to stay in the Rest of England, with 61% of visitor nights spent there, against 48% from all markets.
- Polish visits in general have a below average propensity to feature rural areas of Britain. Holiday visits have a slightly above average propensity to involve some time on the coast/beach.
- A below average proportion of Polish visits to the UK have been bought as a package or all-inclusive tour. Most Polish visits were organised independently in 2016 (please note ONS definition of package holiday on page 16).
- Polish travellers have an above-average propensity to bring their own vehicle when they visit the UK.

1.1 Key statistics: purchase of package tours

Proportion of visits that are bought as part of a package or all-inclusive tour in 2016

To be defined as a package, a trip must be sold at an inclusive price covering both fares to and from the UK and the cost of at least some accommodation. While some respondents may not know the separate costs of their fares and their hotel because they bought several air tickets and several sets of hotel accommodation from their travel agent, the ONS definition of a package is that the costs cannot be separated.
1.2 Visitor demographics

Visitor characteristics

• Almost all business visitors from Poland are male but Britain attracts more female than male leisure visitors.
• Less than half of holiday visitors are making a repeat visit to Britain (excl. UK nationals).
• Almost all visits from Poland to the UK were made by Polish nationals (98%) and fewer than 1% by British nationals in 2016.
• 90% of departing Polish travellers are either ‘Very’ or ‘Extremely’ likely to recommend Britain for a holiday or short-break.
• 87% of departing Polish felt ‘Very’ or ‘Extremely’ welcome in Britain.

1.3 Britain and competitors

Market size, share and growth potential

• Britain was the most visited destination by Polish travellers in 2016, ahead of Italy.

• Forecasts suggest that overnight trips from Poland to Britain will increase further by 28% over the next several years (2016-2025). The overall volume of outbound trips from Poland is forecasted to grow strongly by 63% in the same timeframe.

• An increasing proportion of the Polish resident population aged 15+ participates in tourism with at least one private trip per year. In 2016 18.4 million took part (5% growth on 2015).

• The overall volume of trips taken by Polish residents aged 15 or above also grew by 8% year-on-year in 2016. Domestic trips dominated the picture with about 44 million of trips taken within Poland – almost 61% of these were short trips of a duration of two to four days.

1.4 Inbound activities

Inbound Britain activities

- Shopping is the most popular activity, included in more than three in five holiday visits from Poland.
- Many Polish holiday visitors like to dine in a restaurant or visit a pub while in Britain, although they have a lower propensity to do so than the average visitor to the UK.
- Almost half of Polish holiday visits involve time in a park or garden.
- Built heritage sites, and especially museums, are important attractions for many Polish holiday visitors. Sightseeing features in over two in five such visits.
- More than one in four holidaymakers like to socialise with the locals during their trip.
- Almost 13,000 visits per annum from Poland feature time watching football.

Chapter 2:
Understanding the market
2. Understanding the market

Chapter summary

• Poland has a population of about 38 million.
• The Polish outbound market is continuously growing and travel is becoming more and more important. 57% of Polish residents aged 15 and over took at least one private trip for tourism in 2016.
• 46% of Polish people state that they used online commercial services to make their holiday booking.
• Friends, family and colleagues are the most influential source when making a travel decision, followed by information online and personal experience.
• Views of Britain tend to be positive: Polish respondents ranked the UK second out of 50 countries in 2017. They rate Britain highly for its contemporary culture, sports and vibrant cities. Music and films are the cultural products or services most associated with Britain, closely followed by sports and museums.
• Activities that appeal to potential Polish visitors include a visit to Buckingham Palace and spotting wildlife in the Scottish Highlands.

2.1 Structural drivers

Demographics & society

• Population of about 38 million.
• Poland is a republic.
• There are 16 provinces: Lower Silesia, Kuyavia-Pomerania, Lodz, Lublin, Lubusz, Lesser Poland, Masovia, Opole, Subcarpathia, Podlaskie, Pomerania, Silesia, Holy Cross (Swietokrzyskie), Warmia-Masuria, Greater Poland, and West Pomerania.
• The population tends to be concentrated most in the southern area around Krakow and the central area around Warsaw and Lodz as well as in the northern coastal city of Gdansk.
• The official language is Polish. English is the most common foreign language taught in school.
• Polish employees receive usually between 20 and 26 days of annual leave (depending on the length of their employment).

2.1 Structural drivers: general market overview

General market conditions

- Poland was Britain’s 8th largest source market in terms of visits and 16th most valuable for visitor spending in 2016.
- The Polish economy is forecasted to remain strong in 2018 with real GDP growth expected to stand at 4.2%. Consumer spending is expected to remain strong.
- The country has a population of about 38 million with a median age of 41.
- Most people in Poland are well-educated; however, GDP per capita in purchasing power parity terms is around US$26,350, lower than the Eurozone average.
- Exchange rate: comparing the monthly average for March 2018 and March 2016, when GBP was very strong vs. PLN, the cost of GBP has become 13% more affordable for Polish visitors to the UK.

2.2 Consumer trends

- In 2016, 57% of Polish residents aged 15 or over took at least one leisure trip, i.e. 18.4 million people participated (5% more than in 2015). The volume of trips taken increased by 8%. Domestic trips dominated the picture with about 44 million of trips taken within Poland – 61% of these were short trips (2-4 days). Expenditure by Polish travellers also increased for both domestic and trips abroad in 2016.
- Nature, city trips and visiting friends and/or family are the most important reasons for Poles to go on a holiday, just ahead of sun and beach.
- Asked for reasons which would make them come back to a holiday destination, almost three in five value the “natural features”. The general level of prices and the quality of accommodation were also key reasons for many Polish respondents.
- Many Polish consumers are comfortable buying goods or services online. However, while their share is growing, it remains below the European average in 2017.

2.2 Consumer trends: overall travel trends

Travel trends

- An increasing proportion of the Polish resident population aged 15+ participates in tourism with at least one leisure trip per year. In 2016 18.4 million took a trip, which represents 5% growth on 2015.
- The overall volume of trips taken also grew by 8% year-on-year in 2016. Domestic trips dominated the picture with about 44 million of trips taken within Poland – 61% of these were short trips of two to four day duration. Outbound trips have a much higher tendency to be longer trips of 5 days and over.
- Most of the domestic trips were taken to visit friends and/or relatives, followed by trips for holidays, leisure and recreation.
- Expenditure on trips by Polish residents aged 15+ also increased, both for domestic and outbound trips amounting to just under 60bn PLN in 2016 (a 11% increase on 2015) – around £11bn at 2016 average exchange rates.

- The average expenditure per person on a domestic trip of two to four days was 287 PLN (c.£54) and 884 PLN (c.£166) for trips of five days and over. For an outbound trip the average Polish traveller spent 1,203 PLN (c.£225) on a short trip of two to four days and 2,484 PLN (c.£465) on a longer one of five days or more. Most of the Polish tourism expenditure goes to transport followed by accommodation and food and drink.
- Many Polish consumers are comfortable buying goods or services online. In 2017, 45% of Poles aged between 16 and 74 had done so during the past 12 months. While this proportion is below the EU average (57%), the share of those ordering online has grown consistently over the past decade.
- Polish travellers were most likely to travel with their partner or spouse (34%), followed by travelling with children under 18 (31%) or travelling with friends (23%).

2.2 Consumer trends: motivation and attitudes to holidays

Role of sustainable/environmentally-friendly aspects when choosing travel destinations

- None of these aspects played a role when I chose my travel destination
- At least one aspect
  - The local destination (city, village, region) had introduced sustainable/environmentally-friendly practices (e.g. measures to protect natural and cultural resources, to reduce the environmental...)
  - The destination was accessible by a means of transport with low impact on the environment
  - The hotel/accommodation had introduced environmentally-friendly tourism practices (e.g. energy/water saving measures, recycling, fair-trade food, etc.)
  - The destination or service used (e.g. accommodation, attraction) was certified with a label indicating sustainable/environmentally-friendly practices
- Don’t know
- Other

Motivation and attitudes to holidays

- When asked about the impact of the economic situation on their holiday plans, almost half of Polish travellers said that they were unlikely to amend their holiday plans (46%) and 13% said that they would still go on holiday but were likely to spend less. These trends are broadly in line with the European average.
- When choosing a travel destination, Polish respondents were also broadly in line with the overall European average when it came to the influence of environmental or sustainability factors. Whilst 55% said none of these factors stated had any influence on their decision, two out of five said that at least one aspect played a role.
- The environmental factor most likely to influence the destination decision was whether “The local destination (city, village, region) had introduced sustainable/environmentally-friendly practices (e.g. measures to protect natural and cultural resources, to reduce the environmental impact of tourism, or to involve the local population in tourist services and the benefits of tourism)”.

2.3 Booking and planning

- Almost half of Polish use some type of online channel to book their holiday, a little below the European average.
- Nearly one in four booked their holiday over the phone (above the European average). 10% booked their holiday face-to-face over the counter at a travel agency and 8% over the counter with a transportation company.
- About one in five booked through someone they know and 17% said they did not need to book anything which might include those who planned to stay with family and/or friends in the destination.

2.3 Booking and planning: booking channels

Methods used to book a holiday

- Almost half of Polish respondents used some sort of online channel to make their holiday booking, slightly below the European average (50%). More than one in three used online channels listing private housing offers from individuals.
- Nearly one in four booked their holiday over the phone (above the European average). 10% booked their holiday face-to-face over the counter at a travel agency and 8% over the counter with a transportation company.
- About one in five booked through someone they know and 17% stated they did not need to book anything which might include those staying with friends and/or relatives in the destination.

2.4 Reaching the consumer

- The most influential source for travel decision-making for Polish travellers are friends, family and colleagues followed by websites.
- The influence of social media pages, newspapers, TV and radio is slightly above the European average in the Polish market.
- Personal experience is key for almost one in three Polish travellers when making their travel decisions and more than a third rely on websites collecting and presenting comments, reviews and ratings by other travellers.
- TV reaches about four in five Polish people on a weekly basis, radio more than two in five and print has a weekly reach of about one in three in Poland.
- 76% of the Polish population have access to the Internet (according to Eurostat).

2.4 Reaching the consumer: broadcast media, radio and papers

Broadcast media
- TV reaches about four in five Poles on a weekly basis.
- National public TV channels include: TVP 1, TVP 2 and TVP Info.
- Commercial TV landscape includes: Polsat (most-watched general interest station), TVN, TVN 24, incl. several lifestyle channels and travel programmes such as Travel Channel or Food Network.

Radio
- Radio reaches more than two in five Poles on a weekly basis.
- The most popular radio operators include: Polish Radio (operates 5 national networks and many regional stations), TheNews.pl, FMF FM and Radio Zet.

Newspapers/ Magazines
- There are more than 300 newspapers in Poland; most are local or regional.
- Some of the most-read papers includes Fakt, Gazeta Wyborcza, Rzeczpospolita, Super Express, Dziennik Gazeta Prawna. Weekly newspapers include: Polityka, Wprost and Newsweek Polska. There are also some in English-language: The Warsaw Voice, Warsaw Business Journal and New Poland Express.

- Print media reaches about a third of Poles on a weekly basis.

Online media/Social media
- 76% of Poles have access to the Internet.
- Many media outlets have digital versions. Gazeta Wyborcza reported 100,000 active digital-only subscribers at the end of 2016.
- In recent years online outlets like Onet and Wirtualna Polska have become the main source of news and increased their market share. Some have also launched digital TV channels.
- Many Polish people rely more on computer and portals than smartphones on average than other Europeans which might explain why new mobile messaging apps are not as popular than in many other countries. Poles have an above-average use of ad-blockers.
- 48% of Poles used social networks on the Internet in 2017 (below EU average, but growing in recent years). Facebook and YouTube are the most used social media channels in Poland, then Twitter. About half of Polish people said they trust social media and search engines as a source for general news and information.

Chapter 3:
Access and travel trade
3. Access and travel trade

• Poland and Britain are well connected. 57% of visits to Britain from Poland came by plane in 2016, roughly a third by ferry and just over one in ten through the Channel Tunnel.
• Annual seat capacity has shown strong growth after a decline in financial crisis years. Whilst 55% of annual seat capacity came into London in 2017, the remaining proportion flew into regional airports which helped support the good regional spread of Polish visitors.
• A large proportion of Polish visitors coming via ferry or through the Tunnel are driving a lorry to/from Britain to deliver and/or pick up goods.
• The Polish tourism trade landscape is diverse and dominated by many small businesses and the source market is becoming increasingly important with growth of Polish outbound travel. A few key players hold the biggest market share of the Polish travel market but Britain is often featured as a more niche destination by smaller players.

Source: Apex Rdc 2017 non-stop flights only
3.1 Access: key facts

- Just under three in five Polish visits to the UK were made by plane in 2016. It is a short non-stop flight: usually between 2.5-3.5 hrs flight time, depending on the departure and arrival airports.
- Annual seat capacity has shown strong growth after a decline in financial crisis years. Whilst 55% of annual seat capacity came into London in 2017, the remaining proportion flew into regional airports which helped support the good regional spread of Polish visitors.
- Polish visitors departing Britain by air pay £13 in Air Passenger Duty.
- Roughly a third of Polish visits came by ferry and just over one in ten through the Channel Tunnel in 2016. 681,000 visits of the annual 1.9 million visits from Poland are those who drive a lorry to/from, Britain often delivering/picking up goods, making up the majority of those visits who come by ferry or through the Tunnel.

3.2 Travel trade: general overview

- The Polish trade structure is fragmented with many small businesses making up the bulk of the sector.
- Tour operators are spread throughout Poland but there is a concentration in larger cities such as Warsaw, Poznan, Wroclaw, Opole, Krakow and Gdansk.
- The large tour operators tend to research their main programmes between February and April.
- Britain is a destination which is often featured among the smaller niche operators and by a few of the larger tour operators.

3.2 Travel trade: practical information

General practical information:

• Business hours are typically 08:00/09:00 – 16:00/17:00. There is usually a half an hour lunchbreak.

• A firm handshake is the most traditional form of greeting, it is quite common for women to have their hands kissed. It is better to start using a person’s title and surname until invited to use their first name. Please avoid placing hands in pockets as it might be regarded as disrespectful and rude.

• Please avoid scheduling meetings coinciding with a public holiday and check if there is a large trade fair happening in the city you are visiting as it may be difficult to find accommodation.

• Dress code: Business dress tends to be smart casual conservative, in larger companies often suits and tie for men.

• Business Meeting Etiquette: Appointments are mandatory and should be made in advance and reconfirmed a few days before. Please phone if you get delayed and try not to cancel a meeting at short notice. Punctuality is very important.

• Communication is straightforward and to the point. The culture in Polish companies tends to be hierarchical and negotiations tend to be held with a direct and forthright approach. Business presentations are most successful when they are clear, concise and easily understood and kept strictly to business rather than a Western-style sales pitch.

• Relationships in Poland are important. Try to visit your contacts at least once a year and keep in regular contact with them even when you are back in Britain.

• Try to provide your printed material in advance and available in Polish wherever possible, and English.
3.2 Travel trade: sales calls

Sales calls
The Polish trade structure is fragmented. Tour operators are spread throughout Poland but there is a concentration in larger cities such as Warsaw, Poznan, Wroclaw, Opole, Krakow and Gdansk. Therefore, before you embark on a sales visit to Poland, VisitBritain recommends that you take the following steps:

• Provide the operators you are visiting with a comprehensive information pack about your products, ideally in advance. Make information available in English and Polish wherever possible. It is often appreciated.

• If you are driving between Polish towns to visit your contacts allow for plenty of time as road conditions might require more time than driving the same distance in Britain, particularly in rural areas. Local airports also operate a comprehensive network of domestic routes and most cities are well connected via rail.

• On your return to Britain ensure that you follow up quickly and renew contact regularly.

• The large tour operators research their main programmes between February and April. These programmes are often costed between May and July and launched in the period between September and November. Smaller specialist tour operators tend to research their programmes later in August/September for a launch in January/March. Off-season/city break operators tend to research their winter programmes in March/April and launch them in June/July/August.

• Keep in touch with VisitBritain; let us know about your progress. Regular market intelligence is essential for our future plans and activities.

• It is also important to note that a significant number of the key Britain players attend the VisitBritain’s ExploreGB workshop, Best of Britain, BIM Marketplace and VisitScotland Expo. Please contact VisitBritain London for details of those attending. Some operators also visit World Travel Market but register with the organisers independently.
3.2 Travel trade: hospitality etiquette

Hospitality etiquette
If there is the opportunity it is definitely a good idea to take your Polish business partner out for a meal or coffee – either to build up a relationship or to thank for business given in the past. Here are some practical tips to help you plan this:

• When choosing a restaurant ensure beforehand that credit cards are accepted or bring enough cash. Many Polish restaurants do not take credit cards.
• Arrive on time and if possible, before the invite, as punctuality indicates reliability.
• If you order water you will be asked if you want still or sparkling mineral water.

• Service charge and VAT are included in the price, but ‘rounding up’ the amount as tip is very common. If you are paying for more than one person you might go higher. A rule of thumb is to add 5-10%.
• If you are not paying for everyone, then splitting a bill is quite common in Poland.
3.3 Caring for the consumer

Caring for the consumer

- Whilst Polish travellers would usually not expect their British hosts to speak Polish as many of them have good command of English (especially the younger generations), signage and information in Polish helps make them feel much more welcome.
- Polish travellers are often spontaneous and may ask for some recommendations once they are on location.
- Communication tends to be direct and to the point.
- Polish travellers think that value for money is really important. As the level of prices for accommodation tends to be higher in Britain than in Poland, it raises expectations for very good standard and service. Polish holidaymakers value spacious rooms – often they think of British rooms as quite small.
- Many prefer beds with duvets rather than tucked-in sheets with blankets and central heating. They often appreciate that British hotels offer tea making facilities in hotel rooms. Individual travellers often book B&Bs, hostels and mid-star range hotels; for tour groups often 4-5 star hotels are booked.

3.3 Caring for the Consumer

Caring for the Consumer:

- Whilst perceptions of British food tend to be below average many Polish travellers are keen to try local food and produce. British pubs are generally loved and pub food usually goes down well.
- Poles often eat bread, bread rolls with a good selection of jam, cold cuts, cheese/cottage cheese or eggs for breakfast. Cooked breakfast is not very common in Poland.
- Lunch tends to be the most substantial meal of the day, usually eaten sometime between 1pm and 5pm, either at home or at the workplace. You could say it is a dinner at lunchtime but many in urban areas are now making dinner their main meal of the day, especially when both parents in a family work.
- The evening meal is supper/dinner. The time and menu vary greatly: sometimes it can be nearly as substantial as lunch but more often it is just sliced meats with some salad or even lighter, a pastry and a glass of tea. Supper is usually eaten between 6pm and 7pm.

- Poles are passionate tea drinkers but seldom drink it with milk, instead, a slice of lemon is added plus sugar to taste. Coffee is another popular drink and they often like it strong.
- These days drinking habits of Poles are changing; increasingly Poles are turning to beer and wine instead of vodka. In spite of the stereotypes, Poles are often not large consumers of alcohol, and excessive drinking is frowned upon.
- Propensity to use a credit card tends to be lower than average among Polish visitors, especially among business visitors.
